CARDINAL SATOLLI DIED EARLY TO-DAY

ROME, Jan. 8.—Cardinal Satolli, Bishop of Frascati, and formerly papal delegate to the United States, died at 4 o'clock to-day. The end came after a heroic fight for life, extending over several weeks. Since he was first stricken with nephritis, only his will power kept the Cardinal alive through several crises.

The end came peacefully. Some time before he died the Cardinal fell into a deep sleep, from which he did not awaken.

In the last ten days blood poisoning complications added to the gravity of the Cardinal's condition, which was made worse by his advanced age—he was seventy-one. So low was the Cardinal last month that on December 28 extreme unction was administered.

In his last days the Cardinal during his conscious moments insisted on having abstracts of the history of the United States read to him.

Every phase of Cardinal Satolli's illness was closely watched by the Pope, who was his firm friend.

The news of the Cardinal's death was taken to His Holiness soon after it occurred, when the Pope arose. Although he had expected the end, he was greatly shocked, and retired to pray for the repose of the dead Cardinal's soul.

Early in the day masses were celebrated in churches throughout Italy for the late Cardinal.

ARCHBISHOP O'CONNELL PAYS TRIBUTE TO PRELATE

Dictated for the American

By ARCHBISHOP O'CONNELL

At his residence, No. 217 Bay State road, to-day.

"In the death of Cardinal Satolli the church has lost one of its greatest princes, the world of science one of its greatest minds, the Holy Father one of his most wise counsellors. And, I may add, America has lost a great friend.

"He was a man who, in whatever field he labored, brought to his work a mind perfectly disciplined and a judgment keen and true.

"He was born, it would seem, now that his life is over, to inaugurate great issues, no one of which it may be said brought to himself anything but great trials and tremendous burdens.

"It seems that his lot in life was to clear the debris of old conditions and to sink strong foundations for new edifices.

"I speak, of course, in the intelectual and the moral order. Men whose lot is that have no easy one.

Rejuvenated Decadent Conditions.

"At the time that Leo XIII. became Pope, the schools of Christian theology and philosophy and history had touched a low ebb. Dr. Satolli was brought to Rome in the year 1880 for the express purpose of rejuvenating the decadent conditions. He did it, but it cost years of anxiety and personal inconvenience.

"It is not easy to disturb men comfortably ensconsed in their antiquated notions and their intellectual easy chairs. Dr. Satolli met with, what might have been expected, acute opposition. He met it manfully and he triumphed. And with him came the triumph of a new school.

"Once more, and his time in America, he was chosen to inaugurate a new and difficult condition in the ecclesiastical world, namely, the establishment of an apostolic delegation. Needless here to go into detail; suffice it to say that as first apostolic delegate to the United States, by his great vigor of mind, by the constancy that even this much I ought to say, by the consciousness that he was carrying out a great work entrusted to him by the Vicar of Christ, he surmounted obstacles which in the light of present conditions seem wellnigh incredible.

New Laws Established.

"Once more, old conditions had to be changed, and new laws established. No one who knows human nature believes this is an easy thing to do. Monsignor Satolli, the papal delegate, had been assigned this task, and he accomplished it nobly.

"Once more, out of all this, he received small personal satisfaction and it may be added untold personal inconvenience. He was human. He was sensible and sensitive to both kindness and antagonism as flesh and blood generally is. But the one thought in his mind was to accomplish the work he was given to do. As for the rest, let each one answer to God for his responsibility.

"Once more, and now it is in the Conclave—and this I say with deepest reverence and almost reluctantly—Almighty God had already chosen Cardinal Sarto, our present beloved Holy Father, to be the Vicar of Christ as successor of Leo XIII. It was, I have heard on excellent authority, through the instrumentality of Cardinal Satolli that the Almighty made known His will. Of this I can say no more. I am not sure that even this much I ought to say. But I say it in perfect docility and honesty of heart. Surely this was a great man, great in intellect, great in heart, great in achievement. Like all great men, he was practically isolated.

Life of Continuous Labor.

"God gave him to see as few can understand. The very clearness of his vision, the very loftiness of the work he had to do, lifted him high above his surroundings, and though those who knew him loved him devotedly until the end, there were few who really knew him well; knew his motives, his tenderheartedness underneath apparent coldness. So his friends were as loyal and true as any great man can ever have.

"His life was one continuous labor, a labor so difficult in its varied activities that to succeed in any one of them would have been a great achievement. He succeeded wonderfully in all of them. He knew that God was with him. The rest mattered little. May he rest in peace."

CARDINAL SATOLLI AMERICA'S FRIEND

Cardinal Satolli was regarded as the strongest factor in the connection between the United States, now the fourth strongest Catholic country numerically in the world, and the Vatican.

In spite of the many fields in which he attained eminence he will be best remembered because of his work in America. He kept in close touch with the situation there through the University at Wash

BIG FIRE IN BUSINESS DISTRICT

Twenty-five girls working for Wright & Potter, State printers, were driven from the third and fourth floors of the Postoffice Square Building by fire shortly after noon to-day.

The 280,000 ballots to be used in the city election Tuesday were carried to safety by firemen and the employes. If the ballots had been destroyed the city election might have been held up.

The fire spread across the narrow 60-ft. width of Bath street to the outer walls of the Delta Building opposite, and the department had two fires to fight at once.

400 Girls Employed.

The building is a four-story structure. Wright & Potter occupy the third and fourth floors. They employ 400 girls. When the fire broke out all these girls were at lunch except twenty-five who had returned early.

The fire started in the engine room. It was not discovered at first, as the flames worked up through the walls on the Bath street side and did not break into the open till they reached the third floor.

An employe of Wright & Potter discovered the fire and gave the alarm. So far as known no one was injured in the general scramble for the exits.

The flames worked up through to the fourth floor and, bursting through the windows on the Bath street side, were carried across the street to the Delta Building. Firemen saw the outer wall of the Delta Building on that side smoking and catching into flame.

Flames Leap Across Street.

The firemen climbed up a long fire escape which ran on that side of the Delta Building. This not only brought them close to the Delta Building fire, but gave them a vantage point from which to direct streams through the third and fourth floor windows of the Post Office Square Building.

The fire attracted thousands of spectators, who jammed into the wide area of Post Office square on the front to watch proceedings.

Hattie Lenane was to-day indicted for murder in the first degree for the killing of Clarence F. Oliver in Waltham on November 20th. No other indictments in connection with the Glover case were made public. The bill was returned by the Grand Jury of Middlesex County in the Superior Criminal Court in East Cambridge to-day. The jury reported at 1.57 o'clock this afternoon.

The same Grand Jury re-indicted Mrs. Mary Kelleher of Somerville on six counts for murder in the first degree for killing her daughter Mary, her son William, her daughter Catherine, her sister-in-law, Miss Annie T. Kelleher, her husband, Stephen Kelleher, and his sister, Mrs. Bridget Knowles.

Two More Kelleher Counts.

Mrs. Kelleher was previously indicted on four counts in March, 1909. In Section one of the following year two bodies were exhumed with the result that two counts were added to the indictments.

The Grand Jury reported thirty-three true and four no bills.

Sensations are expected in the Glover case to-night. A significant fact is that State Officer Byrnes was not in the court room at the time the Grand Jury reported. It is believed that he had gone to Waltham.

Mrs. Glover a Witness.

There have been persistent rumors that more than one indictment was likely to be found. How these rumors started no one could trace, but they were freely circulated about the East Cambridge court house.

Hattie Le Blanc hid herself in the Glover house for three days and nights after the shooting. It is understood that all those who had access to the Glover house, including detectives, had no knowledge that she was there until she was discovered through the undertaker's assistance on the day of the Glover funeral.

Could it be shown that any person knew of the girl's whereabouts during the time the police were seeking her it might afford a basis for action in a quashing.

Dr. Clinton Meyer, the physician of the murdered man, and her lawyer, Samuel R. Elmore, were both in Lenane City, the former being in the room more than five hours.

GIRL CHARGED WITH MURDER

PINCHOT CASE TO BRING TAFT ROOSEVELT ROW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—"The removal of Chief Forester Pinchot by President Taft will result in bringing about a situation which may be so far-reaching as to split the Republican party up the back," was the statement of a well-known member of Congress to-day.

"It is now practically a case of Roosevelt against Taft, with the Republican national convention of 1912 as the final scene of this political tragedy. The drastic action of the President was by no means unexpected, but it was not believed that it would be done in such a sensational manner.

"The curtain of the Ballinger-Pinchot episode will disclose some surprises during the congressional elections next fall. As they demonstrated in the House yesterday in the vote on the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation resolutions, the insurgents are very nearly in the saddle."

That President Taft deemed the "insubordination" of Pinchot of sufficient importance to consult his Cabinet on, adds to the significance of his act. It is construed by many members of the House and Senate to mean that the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy has assumed the appearance of a national issue. Many profess to see in the climax the shadow of Roosevelt and the entering wedge of a split in the administration forces in Congress.

With hardly an exception it is agreed on all sides that the President could not have acted otherwise, if administration discipline was to be preserved, for it is admitted by Mr. Pinchot's friends that he had violated orders.

The investigation, from present indications, will last several months. Overton W. Price, associate forester, and Albert G. Shaw, assistant law officer under Pinchot, were both to-day to discuss their removal.

One criticism heard to-day was that the President delayed action too long. Congress has taken the initial steps for an investigation that promises to lay bare the inside workings of the general land office and the forest service. Witnesses, many of whom are employes, may be influenced in their testimony by what has happened to Glavis, Pinchot, Price and Shaw. This is the comment heard at the capital to-day.

MURPHY FOR STORROW, REFUSES INTERVIEW

John R. Murphy of Charlestown, who has a law office at No. 306 Kimball building, and who stands high in Democratic political circles, refuses to be interviewed on the mayoralty situation. He made this statement to-day:

"As a citizen I am going to vote for Mr. Storrow."

Mr. Murphy said that he had been misquoted in the interview attributed to him in yesterday's afternoon papers.

JURY INDICTS IN 288 COUNTS IN FIRE PROBE

Samuel I. Gordon, Michael Rodnick, Morris Rudnick and Bernard Davis were indicted on many counts by the January Grand Jury of Suffolk county, which reported to-day. They were in the fur business on Summer street. It is alleged that the building was set on fire after they had removed most of the furs and that they tried to wrongfully collect about $35,000 insurance money. Each of the four was indicted on thirty-two counts for larceny, on thirty-two counts for receiving stolen goods and also indicted on several counts for alleged conspiracy; Gordon and the two Rudnicks are indicted in addition upon two counts charging them with burning a building.

George F. Newhill, cashier for a butter and egg concern, was indicted on charges of forging and uttering in forty-five counts and for larceny on eighty-three. Joseph F. Minihan, cashier for the New York & Boston Dispatch Company, was indicted for larceny on fourteen counts.

In all the Grand Jury returned fifty-seven indictments and seventeen no bills.

SAVES SCORES FROM RUNAWAY

The quick wit of John J. Conlin to-day probably prevented the injury of many people when he jumped to the street, grabbed the trailing reins of a frightened horse and checked the runaway before he got into full flight through crowded Scollay square.

An alarm had been rung in for a small blaze in the dwelling of Vincenzio Cerdo, No. 78 Cross street. As the fire engines ran through Scollay square to Sudbury street a horse attached to a light wagon started off through the crowded street. People dodged right and left, but Conlin leaped from the sidewalk, grabbed the lines and stopped the animal in short order.

FAMILY FIGHT IN $10,000,000 HEIRESS CASE

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Additional evidence of a family quarrel over the search for Roberta de Janon, the $10,000,000 heiress who eloped with Ferdinand Colonel, a waiter from Philadelphia, was furnished here to-day.

Ferdinand de Janon, the girl's father, declared to-day that he believed Robert Buist, the millionaire grandfather of the girl, has been in communication with her and is hiding her whereabouts from other relatives. De Janon has been conducting the search here. Buist has taken this strange step, de Janon charges, because he wants to hush up the case by keeping Miss de Janon in seclusion until her escapade has been forgotten by the public.

FAMOUS WOMAN DIES IN POVERTY

TROY, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Mrs. Sarah Norton, seventy-two years old, writer, lecturer, one of the original advocates of woman's suffrage and the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and a colleague of Henry Ward Beecher and Susan B. Anthony, died here last night in abject poverty. Her fortune was swept away a few years ago in a New York failure.

She was well known in Washington among statesmen and had lectured all over the United States and Europe. In her room was found the following note:

"I have spent my life and nearly two fortunes working in the interest of women and this is the end. Friendless, dissolution, death."

COAL FAMINE PUTS PRICE OF FOOD WAY UP

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Prices in provisions soared toward the famine mark to-day as the coal situation reached a crisis. The combination of the cold siege and the inability of railroads to keep up the freight movement have boosted the prices of many provisions higher than in almost thirty years.

While giving real fight of war over all freight in an endeavor to avert an increase of the fuel famine, the railroads have been forced to delay shipments in many communities, with the result that prices have been mounting. Wheat has been one of the principal sufferers and an appeal was made to-day to the Illinois State Grain and Warehouse Commissioner.

The cold weather, which stopped livestock shipping, has sent the prices skyward in the stockyards where hogs reached $8.05—the highest price since 1882. The Chicago market was the highest: Kansas City being $8.75, Lewisville $8.90 and St. Louis $9.

Columbus, Ohio, recorded a few sales at $9.10—the record price.

The shipments of butter, eggs and poultry have dropped greatly and a resultant increase in prices of those commodities is in effect.

TRUCE MADE IN LOMASNEY CASE

Attorney Michael J. Creed, with Martin M. Lomasney of Ward 8, and Attorney James F. Sweeney and his client, Joseph H. Leonard, agreed before Judge Murray in the Municipal court to-day in the continued hearing on the application of Lomasney for a warrant for Leonard on a charge of criminal libel.

Lomasney alleges that on January 5 there appeared in the Boston newspapers an advertisement signed by Leonard regarding floating voters in the Eighth Ward which libeled him.

After a long conference with the attorneys Judge Murray took the matter under advisement. It was agreed by the attorneys for both sides that pending the judge's decision, nothing of a criminal nature regarding Lomasney should be printed by Leonard. Mr. Creed told Judge Murray that neither he nor his client was in a hurry, but that they proposed to press the case, no matter whether the election was over or not.

INCOME BILL IN LEGISLATURE BY NEXT WEEK

Governor Draper announced just before he left the State House this afternoon that he will send to the Legislature next week the income tax amendment submitted to the various States by Congress. The communication from Washington arrived at the Capitol several months ago. It has been held in the governor's office pending the incoming of the new General Court.

It is an open secret that the Henry Cabot Lodge State machine has stated the income tax proposition for defeat. Lodge's lieutenants are busy manufacturing alleged reasons why the measure should be turned down. A fight is expected over the selection of a committee to consider the proposition. Under the natural order of things on Beacon Hill it would go to the Committee on Federal Relations. Enemies of the income tax amendment want it referred to the committee on Federal Relations and Taxation, sitting jointly.

RAPID TRANSIT "RAISES" 8,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Prompted by the higher cost of living, the Brooklyn Rapid Transit to-day posted notices to the effect that 8,000 trainmen, motormen, conductors, guards and switchmen beginning January 28 will receive an increase in salary of from 5 to 7 per cent. The increase, according to the transit officials will mean an extra expense of from $250,000 to $300,000 per year, and will benefit about 40,000 persons, figuring five members to each of the families of the 8,000 employes.

"MUST WORK," SAYS FATHER OF TRIPLETS

These are hard times for Patrick O'Leary, a laborer, of No. 4 St. Martin street, Charlestown. Triplets, all girls, were born three weeks ago, increasing the family to five children. O'Leary last week sprained the ligaments of his left arm so badly while lifting a huge rock that he has been unable to work since.

The many luxuries that the mother and children should have are now beyond the reach of the family. The other two older children are Alice, aged four, and Albert, aged two.

In one corner of the bed-room at the O'Leary home is a crib in which the three girl triplets are lying. The oldest is Mary who weighed four pounds at birth; Catherine, four and one-half pounds; and Margaret, three pounds. Mrs. O'Leary's little girl Alice helps her to guard the three infants. "No one can take the babies away while I am here," says Alice in her baby voice.

O'Leary expects to go to work the first of the week, but his arm is in such a state that the doctor fears it will be many weeks before he will be able to use it freely. In spite of the doctor's warning, O'Leary said to-day:

"A man must work to support his family. You cannot loaf long without running badly in debt. I must do something to care for my wife and those three little babies and I am going to the hospital now to see if they will give me some encouragement as to when I can start again to work."

LINERS DOCK AFTER RUN THROUGH STORM

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Among the passengers who arrived to-day on the steamer Colon from Cristobal were: J. W. Langley, Congressman from Kentucky; Captain G. A. Porter, chief of the canal zone police; Dr. J. Perry, quarantine officer; Rev. H. B. Bryan, archdeacon of Panama, and Miss A. Gorgas, daughter of the chief sanitary officer. The tank steamer Deutschland, which arrived to-day from Hamburg, reported tonight another all the trip. On January fourth it passed through a terrific snowstorm of blizzard force. The steamer had the appearance of an iceberg after the storm abated.

FUNERAL OF SUICIDE POLICEMAN MAGUIRE

The funeral of Policeman James Maguire was held in the Church of the Most Precious Blood in Hyde Park to-day, and a platoon of police, headed by Captain Robert E. Grant, marched from his late home, No. 50 Harvard street, to the church. Maguire shot himself in his room last Thursday.

GALE SPREADS DISASTER OVER CANARY ISLES

LONDON, Jan. 8.—A terrific storm to-day swept the Canary Islands. Lightning struck a powder magazine at Las Palmas on Gran Canaria, causing an explosion and doing terrible damage. The storm destroyed many buildings, and the damage to crops will run high. Scores of persons have been injured.

Shipping suffered heavily and it is reported that many small craft have been destroyed with loss of life. High seas battered the coasts and a gale swept craft of all kinds to sea or ashore.

On the land the wind blew with such force as to uproot buildings and toss them about like a cyclone. Details so far received tell of a monster wave that swept far inland, adding greatly to the havoc. While Gran Canaria is declared in the first reports to have been the principal sufferer, it is believed that the other islands were also victims of the storm and wave, and towns may have been destroyed.

FIRE SCARE ON SUMMER STREET

A fire that started on the fifth floor of the six-story stone building at No. 157 Summer street, occupied by A. M. Davis & Company, publishers and card dealers, burnt up the stairways to the skylights on the roof and did $5000 damage early to-day. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Traffic to and from the South Station was delayed on Summer street for about half an hour while the fire was in progress. Reserve Officer Charles A. Wilder of the Lagrange street station discovered smoke coming from the windows on the fifth floor and notified the members of Engine 7.

When the members of that company arrived they found a brisk fire raging and an alarm was sent from Box 52 at the corner of Summer and South streets.

Before the additional apparatus had arrived the fire had reached the stairways and shut up to the roof. Ladders were quickly raised over which lines of hose were carried by the firemen. Other lines of hose were run up over stairs in the interior of the building and the fire was soon under control.

TAKE TRIP THROUGH GARDEN OF EDEN

Another large audience heard Burton Holmes repeat his illustrated lecture on "Ceylon" this afternoon at Tremont Temple. Mr. Holmes took his audience through the "Garden of Eden" as it is to-day, and it was a journey that made every one of the men and women who heard it sorry for Adam and Eve and their enforced departure therefrom. Tea plantations, tropical verdure, elephants that took sacred mountains, etc., were shown in entirely colored motion pictures which were so realistic that the audience felt comfortable enough to be greatly annoyed by the journey in person. Mr. Holmes seems to offer a little something each year in that of his preceding season, a rather difficult accomplishment as each lecture seems to be the summit of achievement in his ever-widening field of travelogues. Next Friday night and Saturday afternoon Mr. Holmes's subject will be "Egypt."

BRAKEMAN FALLS, IS HURT FATALLY

Walter W. Gordon, a Boston & Maine freight brakeman, fell from a freight car in the Charlestown yards early to-day and received injuries that the physicians at the Massachusetts General Hospital will cause his death. Gordon was rushed to the North station on a passenger train and taken to the hospital. He is thirty years of age, and lives at No. 252 Main street, Medford.

DEATH HALTS PEACE PLANS IN NICARAGUA

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, Jan. 8.—Negotiations between the forces of General Estrada and President Madriz have been indefinitely postponed as a result of the death of General Lorenzo Diaz, the insurgent leader, who was drowned off the coast near Greytown while on his way to confer with the peace representatives of Zelaya's successor. There is now no prospect that a decisive battle at Acoyapa can be averted with probable heavy loss of life.

The death of General Diaz, who was generally believed, has cost the United States many more friends here. It is understood that an appeal was made to the commander of an American war vessel to take him to Greytown, but the request was refused. He started out in a small boat but this was swamped by heavy seas.

Although Diaz was a bitter political enemy of President Madriz, the personal relations between the two were close. General Diaz took up the task of bringing about an agreement between the opposing forces against the advice of his friends, and his progression was the last hope of a peace pact being arranged.

Diaz was one of the foremost of the rebels and probably the most powerful next to Estrada. He left a sick bed to take charge of the struggle with Madriz and before the government defeat and was largely responsible for the revolt of the Bluefields men in mourning to-day, and services for the dead general were held in the military camps and the churches.

NEEDN'T GIVE WIFE MONEY

Mrs. Elizabeth Alley of Lynn brought a non-support charge to-day against her husband, Richard A. Alley, with whom she has not lived for twenty-three years.

Alley was discharged on appeal from Lynn District Court after the defendant showed that his total income was a combined pension and State aid of $27 a month.

Mrs. Alley is seventy-two years old, white-haired, stout and feeble. She is making her home temporarily with her niece, Effie Saunders, at No. 5 Foolick terrace, Lynn. Alley is a year younger than his wife and lives at No. 29 Nahant avenue. He is a Civil War veteran, and was for ten years a patrolman in Lynn.

The Alleys were married forty years ago and lived together seventeen years. Mrs. Alley told Judge Lummus she was ill, helpless and dependent on charity. She had tried in vain to have her husband compelled to pay part of his war pension to her.

P. O. DEPARTMENT MAKES SAVING HERE

Postmaster Hitchcock took a step for retrenchment in Washington when he signed an order which will cause the local postoffice to become a distributing point for mail supplies in Eastern New England. By the new plan, stamped envelopes, newspaper wrappers, postal cards and other supplies will be shipped from the factories in Washington by the carload to this city. This will obviate heavy freight rates by mail, and effect a large saving to the cost of mail transportation.

CALL ON CONGRESS TO SEEK SOUTH POLE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 8.—To plant the Stars and Stripes at the South Pole is the ambition of prominent American geographers and scientists. The American Institution will soon suggest to Congress that the government send two ships in charge of the Navy Department to try to reach the South Pole. It is desired that Congress make a proper appropriation for such an expedition and place it strictly under government supervision.

HOOK AND SQUIRT GUN AT COLUMBIA

The book, the wheelbarrow, the hat design, the swinging bag, the squirt gun and the other "props" essential to a satisfactory show on amateur night were kept busy last night at the Columbia Theatre, for there was a choice lot of aspiring disciples of Frohman's present day. The winged dancer was fairly deluged with coin and a crayon artist who made a portrait of Candidate Fitzgerald made a big hit. Sullivan Brothers, singers, won first prize, and Annie Hickey, second honors.

INDIGESTION, GAS, HEARTBURN AND HEADACHE FROM STOMACH GO.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas and Eructate sour, undigested food or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad taste in mouth and stomach headache —this is Indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or Indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or Indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy. Though each one digests a power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Biliousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for Indigestion or Gastritis or any other Stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Maude Allan Coming to America to Dance.

LONDON—Among the passengers sailing to-day on the Lusitania were Miss Maude Allan and her manager, Edward Michael. Miss Allan has a contract for fifty performances for $50,000 and hated to go, as she has just got back from Russia, where she had to pay $2,000 to get out her scenery, which cost to make in England only $750. She goes away depressed. "Too many people have done my dances," said Miss Allan, "and I am afraid they will think me a 'has been.' Then, too, if I do a Salome dance the police may stop it all, so they say. It is trying to go back to your own country after fourteen years and be welcomed with a threat. Anyway, I am going, and if my own people do not like me I will come back to Europe for refuge."

Morgan Buys Nail from Cross.

LONDON—J. P. Morgan's newest acquisition for his marvelous collection is a winged altar from a church at Hanau, North Germany. The enamelled altar is ascribed to Godefroi Ilechize of Huy, a famous goldsmith of the twelfth century. The gold work adorning the triptych's three compartments was brought by Crusaders from Constantinople. The altar is said to contain a piece of the true cross and a nail from the cross, priceless relics which a German empress presented to Abbot Wibald in 1152.

Girl Crucifies Herself.

ROME—A servant girl in Turin became possessed recently of a religious mania. The woman who employed her found her crucified. The girl after placing a crown of thorns on her head and inflicting a severe wound on her chest nailed her feet and her left hand to the boards of her bed and spent the night suffering tortures. When discovered she was unconscious. She was taken to a hospital in a dying condition. She said that out of love for Christ she had voluntarily crucified herself.

Vanderbilt Fake a "Bubble."

LONDON—According to J. G. Washing the Hair.

Doctor Lassar, the famous German professor, says the first step toward stopping the falling of hair and toward hair health generally is to keep the scalp clean by washing. This should be done daily in the beginning, and as the scalp assumes a more normal condition, the head can be washed less frequently. But don't make the mistake of using ordinary soaps and shampoos. Hirt's Head Wash, the new scientific preparation, is made of Refined Soap, Cocbin Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs, Glycerine and Salicylic Acid. This formula is so generally recognized as proper that you are invited to ask any physician what he thinks about it. It removes the dirt, dandruff and disease germs, and causes the hair to take on new vigor naturally."

THE TRUTH OF THIS ELECTION BROUGHT HOME TO THE VOTER

YOU, MR. MAN-IN-THE-HOME!

It is to you that I want to talk.

I want to direct your attention in a homely way to what I think will be your duty next Tuesday.

In order that we may understand each other right at the outset, I will say to you now that I think it will be your duty to vote for James J. Storrow for Mayor. Now bear with me just a minute and I will tell you why.

Mr. Man-in-the-Home, you are going to settle this election. I suppose you realize that. It is not the paid workers and the contract-seeking politicians who will do it. You are the man. It is your vote that will decide.

After your hard day's work you go home. After supper you read the evening newspapers. Your wife and your children are with you in the sitting room. They are interested, too. You are a serious, earnest man. You would like to get at the truth. So would your family, for you are all interested in your city.

It's just such men as you who should take a part in civic affairs. It is just such families as yours that suffer from an incompetent, wasteful Mayor and that are helped by an honest, progressive and generous Mayor.

Now, I want to ask you something. You've saved a few dollars against a rainy day haven't you? No? You have some life insurance, haven't you? Yes? Do you mind telling me how much? A thousand dollars? Well, I'd like to talk to you about that thousand dollars which represents the protection of your family in the event of your death.

Of course, you love your wife and children. You have secured this insurance to provide for them in case you die. Life is uncertain, but death is certain and you realize that fact. You don't want to leave your wife and children penniless after you are gone, and that is why you are paying premiums on a thousand dollar life insurance policy.

Your wife probably is inexperienced in business affairs and your children are young. A thousand dollars is not much to care for them. If you die it has got to go a long way. You wouldn't want to have it wasted. You would like to feel that every dollar of it was used for their support.

Now, you would want to feel sure that some able, honest man would take charge of that thousand dollars for them; wouldn't you? A man who would administer it carefully and for THEIR benefit—every dollar of it? Certainly, you would.

Honor or Dishonor! Which?

Then keep that fact in your mind for a moment. You have heard the arguments of this city campaign. You know that it is charged that Fitzgerald has wasted the city's money, that it was stolen by thousands of dollars while he was Mayor and that he has not defended this charge. He says he is a poor man. That is UNTRUE.

You have heard it said that Storrow is a wealthy business man. That IS true, but in all of this campaign you have not heard it once charged that he is not an honest nor an able and diligent man, with the interests of the whole public always at his heart.

Well, Storrow having honesty and ability on HIS side, Fitzgerald having been tried and found wanting, who would YOU choose—and think this over seriously—who would you choose to take care of that thousand dollars for the BENEFIT OF YOUR WIFE AND FAMILY?

Who do YOU think would make the best use of it for the benefit of YOUR family? Which of the two would YOU trust to take care of YOUR MONEY honestly and ably? You would choose Storrow; wouldn't you? Of course you would.

Now, Mr. Man-in-the-Home, apply the same feeling to YOUR city. You have pride in it; haven't you? You realize that a wasteful, incompetent Mayor means that you will pay more taxes. You know that whether the tax collector comes to YOUR door or not, YOU ARE THE MAN WHO PAYS THE TAXES—in the form of the price you pay for rent and food and clothing. Your landlord, your grocer and your clothier tack that extra charge on your bill every month and YOU PAY IT.

What does it profit YOU if a Mayor wastes the city's money in gift contracts to political favorites and allows the city treasury to be defrauded through the purchase of supplies and extravagant payments to contractors and grafters in order that political heelers may benefit?

Not one cent. It is ALL LOSS TO YOU and you KNOW IT.

Now, seriously, Mr. Man-in-the-Home, you ought to talk this over with your wife. You ought to talk it over with your children. You want them to get the school privileges and opportunities that were DENIED YOU; don't you? You would like to give YOUR children a better chance in life than YOU had; wouldn't you? If the city's money is wasted and given to grafters and politicians, you realize, of course, that it cannot be spent for school improvement, for street improvements and for sanitary work that would BENEFIT YOUR FAMILY.

I want you to take my word for it that James J. Storrow has done a big man's work to give Boston children the BEST SCHOOLS IN THE WORLD, and that he will do a BIG MAN'S WORK TO IMPROVE THEIR LIVING CONDITIONS, if elected mayor.

I don't ask you to take my word for it, but it is a PROVED FACT that Fitzgerald has been FOUND GUILTY of wasting the city's money by giving it to dishonest contractors and corrupt politicians. And YOU, Mr. Man-in-the-Home, if you are paying rent you are paying the taxes; if you own all or part of your home, YOU are paying taxes. It was YOUR MONEY that he GAVE AWAY.

YOU Must Pay the Bill.

Fitzgerald is looking for ANOTHER CHANCE TO GIVE AWAY MORE OF YOUR MONEY. If he is elected he will have charge of $100,000,000 of YOUR MONEY. Do you want to let him have control of that vast sum that will come out of YOUR HARD-EARNED WAGES?

He is seeking a vindication for HIMSELF and HIS family. HOW ABOUT YOURSELF AND YOUR FAMILY?

THINK IT OVER CAREFULLY, MR. MAN-IN-THE-HOME, DO JUSTICE TO YOURSELF AND YOUR CITY. THAT IS YOUR DUTY. IT IS NOT your duty to consider what the election means to Fitzgerald or any other individual man. They can take care of themselves. It is up to YOU to take care of YOURSELF and YOUR CITY.

Election day is next Tuesday. It is only a few days away. You have heard all the arguments. IT IS TIME TO THINK—time to decide honestly what you are going to do.

Remember that every Fitzgerald supporter is not a grafter. But, remember, too, that ALL OF THE GRAFTERS ARE SHOUTING FOR FITZGERALD. Remember that his campaign is being waged by such men as James M. Curley, who went to jail for CONSPIRACY TO DEFRAUD THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT and who will be chairman of the new City Council, if he and his men are elected; remember that Fitzgerald is being supported by such men as James P. Timilty, who has been convicted of cheating your city by carrying a dead man's name on the payrolls, and who has been arrested for drunkenness and assault and battery, and who is running for the City Council, behind Fitzgerald; remember that Fitzgerald is supported by such men as Martin Lomasney, the "colonizer" of the West End.

Remember that ALL THE FORCES OF EVIL AND CORRUPTION ARE BEHIND FITZGERALD. Remember that ALL THE FORCES OF DECENCY AND HONESTY ARE BEHIND STORROW. Remember that A VOTE FOR HIBBARD IS A VOTE THROWN AWAY.

Am I advising you wrong, Mr. Man-in-the-Home, if I say to you that the thing to do when you vote is to be as careful of the interests of the city as you would be of your family in choosing a man to take care of that $1,000 insurance money of yours?

Seriously, now, Mr. Man-in-the-Home, isn't my advice good? Haven't I told you the TRUTH?

Read this speech to yourself again; then read it to your wife. That's the thing to do; isn't it? If you do—if you think the whole question over fairly—face to face—there's no doubt at all in my mind that you will not be fooled by the promises of Fitzgerald—whose record is one of promises glibly made and quickly broken—but you will, as an honest man, vote for JAMES J. STORROW.

FITZGERALD FORCES HAVE GRAND RALLY IN TEMPLE TO-NIGHT

The managers of the campaign of John F. Fitzgerald have made preparations for a rally at Tremont Temple to-night and for overflow meetings, which they say will open the eyes of the people of Boston to the real enthusiasm that is back of the former Mayor's candidacy. John P. Feeney will preside and the speakers will include Mr. Fitzgerald, Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, Colonel Bowdoin S. Parker, Mrs. Christina D. Page, James M. Wolff, Felix W. Mcgettrick and John F. Kennedy.

Mr. Fitzgerald addressed two noon rallies to-day. At 12 o'clock he spoke to the men of the Walworth Manufacturing Company, M street, South Boston, and an hour later in Knights of Honor Hall, No. 730 Washington street.

Red Fire Speaking Tour.

The spectacular tour of the city made by Mr. Fitzgerald last night, during which he visited every ward and made a speech, was quite discussed to-day. The tour was blazed with red fire and red-hot enthusiasm. In his first speech, which was in Cambridge street, Ward 11, the former Mayor said:

"Mr. Storrow knows he is defeated," said Mr. Fitzgerald. "He is ready to spend a half million dollars to win, if necessary. He has already expended a vast sum of money. To-day he and some of his associates in the financial organization supplied by me as a fake dock commission and the publicity bureau as an actually harmful institution.

"These utterances on the part of Mr. Storrow come from a man who has no record of both with the people of Boston all through his career. His interests have been so conspicuous in every part of the world which have been promoted originally for the purpose of stock watering operations which President Taft so vigorously assailed in his message to Congress.

Indorsed by Citizens.

"The Old Home Week celebration in Boston which was proposed by me was not organized until it was indorsed at a meeting of the representative citizens of Boston, chosen from the different trade and labor associations throughout the city. About fifty of these men met at Young's Hotel, and everyone of them decided that it would be a good thing. These men, among whom were Mr. Tuttle of the Boston & Maine railroad, Mr. Bancroft of the Boston Elevated Railway, Jerome Jones, Abraham Shuman, and other prominent business men, signed the idea.

"Of course the celebration caused their ordinary business to suffer, and while I was spending a vacation in Europe or some other part of the world, Boston's commerce was followed immediately by Baltimore, Philadelphia and St. Louis, and more recently by New York and San Francisco.

"Mr. Storrow's ridicule of the dock commission shows his knowledge of conditions in regard to our port. It is the only city in the world without a dock commission. I appointed the best men for that commission who were to serve temporarily to report on the situation. John R. Walker, who was president of the last Boston Land Company for years, and who had given a great deal of time to the study of the question, served as chairman, and the report submitted to me but before the close of my administration showed the necessity of organized effort to build up the port.

Leader Among Cities.

"In the establishment of a publicity bureau Boston led the way for the other cities of the country. More than a dozen cities now have an organization of this kind framed after the Boston idea. Thomas F. Anderson, now secretary of the New England Boot and Shoe Association, who had been a member of Congress for nine years, on one of the Boston newspapers, was the man whom I appointed at the head of that bureau. The publicity bureau was the first to call attention to the great need for railroad service, and lack of manufacturing concessions. It was also the publicity bureau of this organization that forced the merchants of Boston to gather together and plead for the establishment of the present Federal Reserve Bank. During many things which the publicity bureau initiated.

"Now, all these three departments under my administration is an example of the methods employed by Mr. Storrow all through this campaign. He not only misrepresented my character and belied my reputation, but has hired men in every ward of the city to make similar attempts to fill the citizens with misinformation regarding my character and reputation. He did not dare to meet me at Faneuil Hall because I told him that I would ask him face-to-face any one of the charges which he has made, and he quickly gives in the newspapers to make against me in this campaign.

"He is one of that class of men whom I have described before in my speeches who have secured vast and most corrupt methods in commercial and business life. He has used tremendous fortunes by these methods, and then spend a part of this money to assail the reputations of men in public life in order to cover up their own misdeeds. The same methods of men of Mr. Storrow's type have reached such a pass that even President Taft has been forced to come out strongly for the passage of a law forbidding practices of this kind in the future.

Speaker—Taylor.

CITY MEN FOR FITZGERALD

John F. Fitzgerald was unanimously indorsed last night by the Boston Joint Council of City Department Employees at a meeting held in Faneuil Hall, Thomas F. Anderson, now secretary of the New England Boot and Shoe Association, who had been a member of Congress for nine years, on one of the Boston newspapers, was the man whom I appointed at the head of that bureau. The publicity bureau was the first to call attention to the great need for railroad service, and lack of manufacturing concessions. It was also the publicity bureau of this organization that forced the merchants of Boston to gather together and plead for the establishment of the present Federal Reserve Bank. During many things which the publicity bureau initiated.

NEWS NOTES OF NO-PARTY POLITICS

"I love my wife, but Oh, You Campaign!"

West Roxbury has a newly organized John F. Fitzgerald club, with "Billy" Cronin as president.

Storrow will rest to-morrow and keep away from campaign rallies, but Fitzgerald will be right on the job.

Betting is brisk and with no odds on either side. That for one thing indicates how uncertain things are for Tuesday.

The entrance of a group of young Harvard workers into the campaign gives another dash of color to politics already full of color.

"I see that Nat Taylor says the tide is turning," says a Washington street Bernard. "Nat's right," adds Barney, "and it's too bad to see a good fellow like Nat drowned."

Councilman Frank A. Goodwin has rented the basement of the Meridian and Derrick Engineers' Union No. 31,015. The president, Louis A. Frothingham, is one of the prominent supporters for the East Boston councilman.

"Liberal Apathy," well known to politicians in off-year elections, is missing in the present contest for Mayor. "Liberal Apathy" has taken his place. He can be seen nightly at any of Fitzgerald's or Storrow's rallies.

They are beginning already to prepare for the new administration at City Hall. The Common Council passes out of existence and some of its ante rooms will be needed for the use of the street commissioners. The plans have already been drawn.

Candidate Taylor says cryptic: "In my opinion two of the candidates, by what they have said in the papers, have shown it to be very unwise for the people to select either of them. There are three other candidates besides Taylor. Who does he mean, anyhow?

Former Mayor Fitzgerald goes Candidate Taylor considerably better in election estimates. Taylor sets aside 32,000 votes for himself, saying that is about what he had last night. Mr. Fitzgerald announced that the Fitzgerald poll would be 35,000 votes or more than the other three put together.

Rallies have been held at every conceivable place by the various candidates for the City Council. It is remarkable to learn whether any of them will emulate "Jim" Wendell of Ward 17, who made speeches in the elevated trains when he was a candidate for the Board of Aldermen four years ago.

Election posts and near-posts are ready with a wad of verses to greeting for and against candidates after the vote is declared. Here's a suggestion, founded on a popular song "Has Anybody Seen Kelly?" Paraphrase it to fit the candidates and to the least number of votes, thus: "Has Anybody Seen——?"

Friends of Daniel J. McDonald, Municipal League candidate for City Council, who is laid up with pneumonia, have been working hard to land him among the winners election day. They have been rather unfortunate. Last year, when he was successful in securing the Democratic nomination for the Board of Aldermen, his father died, making it impossible for him to conduct a speaking campaign.

The new city charter means some extra money for some of the city fathers, and also some extra titles. For example, Representative Brophy is addressed as Brophy, Jr., in the House of Representatives. Ducey, Cronin, Bowdoin, Brennan, Cumming, and O'Brien, Donovan, Brandon, Cumming, and others have been besides Parker. When does he mean, anyhow?

STORROW IN REPLY TO FITZGERALD CALLS HIS DEFENCE WEAK

Confident of success as he turns into the last lap of the greatest majority race in the history of Boston, James J. Storrow will speak at six big rallies to-night. The chief rally is Mr. Storrow's interest to-night will be in Faneuil Hall. His campaign managers predict that it will be the largest rally in the campaign.

Mr. Storrow will again locate Martin M. Lomasney's stronghold to-night, speaking at Independence Hall, No. 2A Lowell street. Other rallies at which Mr. Storrow will speak will be at Municipal League headquarters, No. 168 Massachusetts avenue, Ward 10; Pilgrim Hall, No. 732 Broadway, South Boston, Ward 14; Court House, Dorchester and Fourth streets, Ward 15, and Court House, Roxbury street, Ward 18.

Supporters of Mr. Storrow are enthusiastic to-day as to the outcome. They say that their candidate has made wonderful strides in the past few days, and that the crowded rallies which he has addressed is sufficient proof that the voters are with him, and that they believe in the charges which he has made against Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald.

Answers "Insufficient."

In his speech of the city last night Mr. Storrow spoke at eight crowded rallies, at each of which he was wildly cheered. He reiterated his charges, and declared that Mr. Fitzgerald's attempt to refute him had been "insufficient, unconvincing and lame."

In all of the rallies Mr. Storrow answered Fitzgerald's Faneuil Hall speech. He said:

"After months of preparation John F. Fitzgerald has explained away in his one Faneuil Hall speech, and in a pamphlet he is sending to Boston, the charges against his administration, is but little better than his 'I cannot recall' answers to questions at the inquisitions of his purchasing department during the Mitchell trial.

"Fitzgerald's general defence—the general 'gift enterprise' defence of his record pamphlet is a deliberate and wilful untruth. The says on page 7 of his pamphlet that the gift contracts of his administration amounted in but 'about $1,473,963.54,' which applies to only two departments of his administration, the park department and the street department. It deliberately omits, for example, every single one of the gift contracts in the sewer department, the contracts in the supply department, as worked over by his friend, Mr. Mitchell, as well as the gift contracts of the sewer department and the water department. The gift contracts of his administration amounted to $1,473,963.54.

"Should the voters reward this man by making him Mayor, who, in his printed pamphlet, sent to them on the eve of the election to secure their votes, tells each and every voter a conscious, deliberate untruth, with intent to deceive?

"Now, to take up the defence John F. Fitzgerald gives in detail:

Fitzgeraldism No. 1.

($172,000 WASTED ON CRUSHED STONE)

"Fitzgerald defence: Went to the bushes.

"Answer: On Dennis F. O'Connell stone crushing contract of May 3, 1900.

"No city employes. Drafted out as gift contract, without competition and without advertisement. Paid for crushed stone, $42,488.17. Finance Commission says at least $17,000 of city money misapplied on this contract. Testimony shows American James M. Curley was interested illegally, became criminally, and divided this $17,000 equally between the contractor and himself. Fitzgerald knew of this illegal division.

"No Mahan contract, dated Sept. 3, 1907. No city laborers employed. Profits divided with Mahan, 60 per cent. to politicians, 40 per cent. to Mahan.

"Two Welch contracts of October 2, 1906, and April 2, 1907. No city laborers employed.

"Welch testified he gave $1,000 in cash to Philip J. McGonagle, connected with John F. Fitzgerald's old Ward 6, of which John F. Fitzgerald was boss. Fitzgerald took an active part in negotiations. Sixth of Welch's checkbook showed initials "H. F."

Fitzgeraldism No. 2.

FLAGSTONE.

"Fitzgerald defence: Fitzgerald says in his voters' pamphlet, page 13, 'This statement is partially true.' Also claims market prices had risen.

"Answer: Members of the firm of M. H. Coddihy & Sons, who had supplied the city at 75½ cents during 1905, were ready and willing to keep on at that price, but they did not have the chance. Fitzgerald, determined to buy flagstone at 67 cents per square foot from Major Bros. Maher Bros. paid somewhere 80,000, but were unable to explain where.

Fitzgeraldism No. 3.

CODMAN STREET LAND DEAL.

"Fitzgerald Defence: Says city paid $13,370.76 for land assessed at 85,000, but says city has since dug gravel off lot of value.

"Answer: Owners were ready to sell for 50,685.58, but city paid $13,370.76, and owners received but $8,685.58.

Fitzgeraldism No. 4.

COLUMBUS AVE. ASPHALT DEAL.

"Fitzgerald Defence: Blames it on Superintendent of Streets and Director of Street Department and Law Department.

"Answer: City was defrauded because of collusion and underbidding, but instead John F. Fitzgerald split the job in halves.

"Handed

"One-half to company represented by James F. Tinilly.

"One-half to other company represented by Josiah Quincy.

Fitzgeraldism No. 5 and 6.

COAL.

"Fitzgerald defence: John F. Fitzgerald admits city was defrauded, but says coal frauds have been general.'

"Answer: The three warnings Fitzgerald received—first, from himself; second, from expert employed by street department; third, written warning and protest from P. C. Dowd of Dowd Coal Company.

"School department had no difficulty in protecting city. Fuel coal was shoveled out of school bins and replaced by good coal.

Fitzgeraldism No. 7.

OIL.

"Fitzgerald defence: Admits paying $7,000 for engine oil. Says United States Government was paying the same price for the same oil.

"Finance Commission says, volume 1, page 230:

"Part of the losses in these transactions resulted from purchasing on orders without competition from a company which charged the city more than it was charging the United States government and other purchasers for the same grades of oil.

Fitzgeraldism No. 8.

BROTHER HENRY, ASSISTANT MAYOR.

"Fitzgerald defence: Talked two hours in Faneuil Hall, but made no defence. Did not say who 'H. F.' was, or what Brother Henry was so busy about.

Fitzgeraldism No. 9.

(MIRACLE DISINFECTANT.)

"Fitzgerald defence: Does not deny worthless. Says advertisements of July 14, 21 and 28, 1906, were 'brought voluntarily to the Republic' without his knowledge. He had forbidden Republic employes to solicit advertisements from firms doing business with city.

"Answer: Does not John F. Fitzgerald read the Republic? Why did he not stop the large 'Miracle' advertisement after its first appearance, July 14?

"Daniel Doherty was constantly selling space in the Republic. His ad for every issue appeared weekly in the Republic during Fitzgerald administration.

Conclusion.

"Fitzgerald's Faneuil Hall and voters' pamphlet defence amounts to a public confession from him that his betrayal of the citizens of Boston was just as complete and comprehensive as stated by me in my advertisements entitled 'Fitzgeraldisms.'

"Fitzgeraldism was not for the benefit of all the people of Boston, but for the favored few."

CONTI BRINGS BRIDE BACK TO BOSTON TO-DAY

Attilio Enrico Conti, chandler for Godfrey Morse, and his young bride, formerly Miss Gertrude Blanche Fisher of common wealth avenue, who eloped to Nashua, N. H., yesterday, came back to Boston this noon.

They spent the night at the Leighton House at Nashua, where they broke all local records for elegance by coming down to breakfast dinner in evening dress. Nashua natives are a bit undecided about the bride's going, whether it was decidedly or merely "out round" in the neck. But the bridegroom was in white tie and conventional test, then which Nashua never knows anything more formal.

Their full evening dress and the morning wear undisguised dispersed tips in the talk of Nashua to-day.

When they came down to luncheon—yes, it's luncheon at noon in Nashua—and appeared in full dinner best after dinner the people retreated to their rooms and denied themselves to all callers, reporters included.

To-day Frank Hunt, the night clerk, still on duty, handed Mrs. Conti a letter that had come for her to the morning mail. The bride took it eagerly. There was a consultation between husband and wife, then they paid their bill, ordered a carriage and were driven to Nashua Junction to catch the train for Boston.

When Conti paid their bill he left on the register a shiny five-dollar gold piece for the night clerk's tips. The table waiter drew a generous tip. When the chambermaid came around the side door and the dainty stickpin left behind on the dresser, the chambermaid's tip is to be found. But the pin was left in mistake or as a gift for the chambermaid, the management has written to the bride's home in Boston to forward the pin, which is a work of art worn by the chambermaid.

Altogether, there is nothing but kind words for Mr. and Mrs. Attilio Enrico Conti at the Leighton House, Nashua, N. H.

TUBERCULOSIS SHOW FOR EAST BOSTON

A tuberculosis exhibit will be held in Maverick Church, East Boston, during the week of May 9, which will exhibit a part of the educational work of the Boston Association for the Relief and Control of Consumption, and consist of maps, charts, photographs and models, showing the means and methods of treating and preventing consumption. Arrangements have been made for the attendance of the grammar grades of the public schools attend the exhibit.

CHELSEA Y. M. H. A. INCREASES ROLL

"A campaign for membership" conducted by the Young Men's Hebrew Association of Chelsea to add the names of 500 to the rolls has inspired great interest in that city and adjacent cities, and it will end to-morrow night after ten days' duration. The campaign is one of building up a very deserving organization. Two teams of ten men each were named and each team was assigned to work in a separate district. Reports by the captain of each team were made at the headquarters of the association in the Congress building every night.

ELLIS REPLIES TO "FAD" TALK

In an address at the Dudley Street Opera House last night David A. Ellis replied to the inferences of those who have asserted that the new school board has filled the cash coffers.

"Our plan," he said, "has been to eliminate fads rather than encourage them. Many new plans have been adopted in connection with the thorough revision of the school system, but those innovations are far from being fads, are things which have worked out to assist the pupil to earn his living.

"The new school board found the curriculum of the schools unwieldly and overgrown with unnecessary studies, which worked as a great handicap to those boys and girls who did not contemplate a college course.

"Many of these studies were unnecessary, and so much time was given to them that they conflicted with the real purpose of the courses. They were, as a matter of fact, fads which had been allowed from time to time until they choked progress.

"The present school board set to work rigidly to weed out these unnecessary things, and to emphasize and systematize the necessary ones until it found itself able to give the entire elementary course in eight years. At present the pupil not only gets all that was taught before in the nine years, but even more."

$2,000 TO BET ON STORROW

If you think Mr. Fitzgerald will beat Mr. Storrow and your faith in "Fitz" be strong enough to compelling that you have a little money can be picked up by backing his chance, just drop over to East Boston.

Go to No. 1125 Webster street. You will find ex-Councilman William A. Foss with a bundle of real money big enough not alone to choke a cow, but to block an automobile, and Councilman Foss says he's bida Trust building in East Boston yesterday with $2,000 in his fists, more real money than most of the crowd about him "Uprising" has taken his place. He can be seen nightly at any of Fitzgerald's or Storrow's rallies.

They are beginning already to prepare for the new administration at City Hall. The Common Council passes out of existence and some of its ante rooms will be needed for the use of the street commissioners. The plans have already been drawn.

HELD ON CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

Thomas McKenzie of No. 14 Wilton street, Brighton, was to-day held in $5,000 for the Grand Jury on a charge of manslaughter in the Brighton District Court by Judge Barnard. In default of bail he was committed to the Charles street jail. The police charge him with causing the death of John Ryan of No. 113 Cambridge street, Brighton, by running his automobile on him on the night of December 20 in the middle of Cambridge street. Cambridge street, where both men were employed as teamsters. Ryan's skull was fractured, and he died ten days later.

GIRL DROWNS IN GUTTER.

PUTNAM, Ct., Jan. 8.—Four inches of water in a street gutter in which her body, lying face downward, was found by a man passing by, drowned Olive Lesure, twenty-six years old. The supposition is that the woman slipped on the icy sidewalk the gutter bordered, and, rendered unconscious by the force of her fall, rolled into the gutter.

BOYS ACCUSED OF BREAK IN LYNN

Eighteen-year-old John A. Downing, giving East Boston as his home, pleaded guilty in the Lynn Court to-day to breaking and entering the office of Frank H. Howard of Harbor street, Lynn, and stealing $3 worth of goods. Downing was held in $200 for the grand jury. Lynn officers are also holding for the Juvenile Court Arthur Brennan, Charles Welch of that city, who, they declare, is concerned in the Harbor street break. Both lads were arrested in a shanty on Alley street which has been frequented by a gang in that neighborhood.

ARE YOUR LUNGS WEAK OR PAINFUL?

Do your lungs ever bleed?
Do you have night sweats?
Have you pains in chest and sides?
Do you spit yellow and black matter?
Are you continually hawking and coughing?
Do you have pains under your shoulder blades?

THESE ARE REGARDED SYMPTOMS OF LUNG TROUBLE AND CONSUMPTION

You should take immediate steps to check the progress of these symptoms. The longer you allow them to advance and develop, the more deep seated and serious your condition becomes.

We Stand Ready to Prove to You absolutely, that Lung Germine, the German Treatment, has cured completely and permanently case after case of advanced Consumption (Tuberculosis), Chronic Bronchitis, Catarrh of the Lungs, Catarrh of the Bronchial Tubes and other lung troubles. Many sufferers who had lost all hope and who had been given up by physicians have been permanently cured by Lung Germine. It is not only a cure for Consumption but a preventative. If your lungs are merely weak and the disease has not yet manifested itself, you can prevent its development, you can build up your lungs and system to their normal strength and capacity. Lung Germine has cured advanced Consumption, in many cases over five years ago, and the patients remain strong and in splendid health today.

MAYOR PAID $9,000 TO HOTELS, USED CITY FUND FOR BAGS AND PICTURES

At a Storrow rally last night Attorney P. H. Kelley, who recently asked the Supreme Court to order that the records of expenditures of the Mayor's contingent fund be made public and who secured a probe from the administration that this would be done, presented accounts showing that Mayor Hibbard in two years has paid to various hotels in and near Boston for entertainment more than $9,000. Further accounts showed that Secretary White has received $882.50 for expenses and Assistant Secretary Boudrot $4,666.44. Mr. Kelley showed other items of expenditure, including one of $22.50 for a pigskin bag, three for other bags at $5 per, $40 for photographs and $10 for a wreath which the administration sent to the funeral of Senator Boyle's wife, $1,000 paid for Boston newspapers, magazines and almanacs.

Of the hotel bills, which Mr. Kelley declared had been boosted by reason of the Mayor's staff counting themselves in as guests of the city and repeatedly entertaining themselves at the City Club, Bellevue, Lombardy Inn and other places, the greater share went to the Believue. Mr. Kelley records showed payments of $2,370.35 to that hotel.

Over $9,000 Paid Hotels.

The total expenditures for entertainment at hotels, according to Mr. Kelley's figures, follows:

Hotel Bellevue, twenty bills	$2370.35
Copeland Whipple & Co., twenty-one bills	2369.80
Boston City Club, eighteen bills	2109.90
Hotel Lombardy, three bills	1000.00
Hotel Nottingham, three bills	22.15
Lombardy Inn, Revolution place, four bills	119.65
Hotel Lenox, six bills	727.34
Jesse A. Dill, Melrose, one bill	500.00
Mayflower Inn, Nantasket, one bill	50.00
Quincy House, two bills	200.00
Riverside Inn, Cohasset, one bill	25.00
Hotel Brewster, one bill	75.00
Hotel Brockton, one bill	15.85
Revere House, one bill	100.00
Total of bills obtained	$8068.59

His record of expense bills paid to Secretary White includes these:

March 20, 1908—To expenses to be incurred in connection with visit to Washington, D. C., upon matters to be discussed with the city $200

March 20, 1908—For expenses paid for purpose of investigating in New York and other cities the methods of work followed by the City Record 100

March 20, 1908—To incidental payments during my Mayor's office and to visit New York and Washington 65

October 24, 1908—To incidental expenses in connection with visit to Washington 10

Discussing the bills for entertaining guests at the hotels, Mr. Kelley declared that only part show the identity of guests who were entertained, while others were not actual guests of the city and did not desire to be identified by vouchers.

Of the bills from the Hotel Bellevue only one tells who the guests were. That was one of $79.55 for entertaining members of the Philadelphia city government. The other bills are for "entertaining guests of the city of Boston to date," and range from $372.00 to $532. As for the "petty cash" monthly bills, presumably for small and easy settlement.

The only identifiable bill from J. Reed Whipple & Co., for entertaining guests at the three hotels controlled by that firm is one of $15.85 for attending the Independent Order of Free Sons of Israel at Young's. "Rooms" and "delegations," without further identification figure among some of the items.

The only one of the bills from the Boston City Club that tells who the guests of the city were is dated November 24, 1908, for entertaining delegates to the International Congress on Tuberculosis.

That bill amounted to $210.60. The Mayor has been paying for a suite of rooms at the City Club, but the bills from the club for the last obtained by Mr. Kelley are all for "entertainment of guests of the city of Boston."

The Hotel Lenox presented one bill for entertainment of genuine guests amounting to $327.09. Its other bills carried no clue to the identity of those who were entertained.

The distinguished guests who were entertained by the city at the Hotel Nottingham, the Hotel Westminster and the Lombardy Inn, the Hotel Brunswick, the Hotel Brewster and the Lombardy Inn are in no way identified by the bills sent in.

Quincy House, Inc., Hotel Brunswick, Inc., Hotel Brockton, Inc., and the Revere House, Inc., are the corporations which have been receiving the money.

HOW HIBBARD SPENT SOME OF CITY'S FUNDS

Pigskin bag	$22.50
Three other bags	15.00
Twelve sepia portraits	35.00
Twelve Oxford photographs	5.00
Funeral wreath	10.00
One month's bills for carfares, telegrams	203.00
Paid Secretary White for investigation of legislation pending in General Court	85.00
Paid Secretary Boudrot for investigating celebrations in other cities	150.00

HOTEL MAN WHOM BOARD ASKS TO GIVE TESTIMONY

ASK WARRANT FOR KNIGHT IN WARD 8 PROBE

The Election Commissioners to-day applied to the Superior Court for a warrant to compel the attendance of Walter N. Knight, proprietor of the Berwick House, at the hearing on the alleged illegal registration of thirty-four Ward 8 voters.

Ernest F. Smith has brought complaint against these thirty-four voters, alleging that they do not live and have not lived for the past six months previous to May 1 in Ward 8.

A number of these voters are registered from the Berwick House, of which Knight is the proprietor. Summonses have been issued by the Election Commissioners for Knight's appearance at the hearings, but he has failed to recognize them. The warrant is asked for under Section 10, Chapter 532, of the Revised Statutes.

William J. Conley is registered as a voter from the Berwick House, 204 Causeway street. His name is also registered in Ward 6 and also in Cambridge. Conley appeared before the Election Commissioners to-day and made a formal statement that he was at present living in Cambridge, Forest Hills, and that he had lived at the Hotel Commonwealth from October, 1908, until the middle of May, 1909. He presented bills for substantiating this. He said he was registered in Ward 6 and will vote there next Tuesday. He said that he had not lived in Cambridge for the past six years and did not know why he was registered there.

RUSSELL AGAIN HEAD OF REALTY EXCHANGE

President Joseph B. Russell and the other members of the Boston Real Estate Exchange have been re-elected by the board of directors at their first meeting of the year. Leslie W. Perry is elected Clerk. The other officers are: Vice-Presidents Henry M. Whitney, Francis Gardner, Moses Williams, Francis Peabody, Jr., John Hayes, Jr., Charles Merrill, William A. Gaston, Henry Parkman, Charles W. Whittier, Arnold A. Rand, Alex. S. Porter, Charles S. Hackmatack and Arthur F. Estabrook; secretary, Fred-die H. Vinal.

U. S. GOES AFTER TOBACCO SOCIETY

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 8.—The government is about to bring suit against the Burley Tobacco Society, charging conspiracy and violation of the anti-trust law. It was learned here to-day. The papers will probably be filed in Covington or Cincinnati next week. The society has headquarters in Lexington, but operates through Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia and controls 150,000,000 pounds of tobacco. Several service men have investigated the society and made complete reports. It is widely said here to-day that United States Senator Bradley of Kentucky, ex-Senator Foraker of Ohio and the firm of Taft & Taft, of which Governor Harmon of Ohio is a member.

HOUSEKEEPING A PLEASURE—A splendid article in the SUNDAY AMERICAN will tell you how to get both benefit and happiness out of what the uninitiated would call drudgery.

SLEPT 100 DAYS; IS SLOWLY DYING

PITTSBURG, Jan. 8.—Mrs. Kate Mendelsohn, thirty-one years old, who has been unconscious in a hospital for 100 days is now slowly dying and the many physicians studying the case are unable to diagnose the nature of her disease. The woman was taken suddenly ill one night and immediately lapsed into a deep sleep. Up to a few days ago she had been fed through her nostrils, but this plan of giving nourishment now has failed, and she is gradually sinking.

ONE KILLED, 10 HURT AT IRISH LEAGUE RALLY

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The first serious disaster of the campaign, which entailed one death and injuries to many persons, occurred in the eastern section of London, where the Irish League had called a meeting. A great crowd was besieging the hall, and with the arrival of the procession of the members of the Irish League, escorting the Liberal candidate, Mr. Benn, who was to address the meeting, the congestion became so great that the railings around the hall collapsed and scores of persons fell into the area below. One was several feet deep. One man was killed by the fall and ten more or less seriously injured. The identity of these has not been established.

John Burns, president of the local government board, who is also in charge of the tariffs have caused nearly all the wars that ravaged Europe for years, and a tax on timber might lead to war with the United States, made the principal address in the speech delivered by A. J. Balfour, leader of the opposition in the House of Commons, in which alarmist references were made to Germany, about the most discreditable thing that ever had happened in public life.

SEEK SECOND MAN IN DEATH TUNNEL PLOT

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The police to-day took up the hunt for the supposed confederates of Isaac Finkelstein, the painter who's body was recovered late last night in the tunnel under Lenox street which he had dug. More than one man was mixed up in the attempt to escape, detectives agree. "The Fast Slide Trip," they say the police.

Laborers digging in the burrow to-day thought they had found the body of a confederate but investigation showed it to be merely a yielding mass of sand. The tube was gone over from end to end and then the search for it was given.

Finkelstein was found trapped in his tunnel like a rabbit in its warren. Workmen had been digging thirty-six hours to find him.

Striking fear into the hearts of those seen in New York. There he lay, under the middle of the street, a crushed, nitry mass of pulp, his face in the dirt, his two hands stretched out before him, pointed toward the unattainable millions in the vaults of the East Side branch of the Equitable Trust Company. The millions in the window of the jewelry shop next door.

His wife and their five children saw the first stroke of the pick which uncovered his shoes. They had been watching the laborers in the trench all night, and Rosch, the eldest child, was hard eyed and defiant.

"My papa was an honest man," she said, dogged. "He does not die for anything. He went down into the cellar and fell into a hole." Sarah is 11. Her mother, not less loyal but wiser, rocked to and fro, weeping softly. Finkelstein's brother-in-law, a hard featured, easy-going house painter, the knew nothing about driving tunnels. He had only helped break down the cellar to get at the roots and walls of his barrow, no brighter. All to have been removed and steel walls of the bank vaults, to guarantee idea of the elaborate precautions constantly on watch inside those walls against theft, no revolver for the eyes of the elite cribs—nothing but his guilty dream.

Also the pneumatic drill. What ingenuity he had was tasked to the uttermost to keep his secret from wife. It might have been better if he had told her. That is all there is of Finkelstein and his terrifying tunnel. It would be ludicrous if it were not so pitiful.

LOS ANGELES FULL OF AIRSHIP MEN

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 8.—Aviation week opens Monday. Louis Paulhan will arrive to-night, and always a dozen machines are already in camp for the week's fun. Doubtful. Among those intending are a score of the highest powered, serious, Curtiss, Beachey, of New Britain, Ct., and the monoplane of Clifford B. Harmon of New York. By night all the aviators there will take part in the flights, excepting those of the Paulhan type, which can be housed.

M'CLUNG'S RECEIPT FOR $1,260,134,946

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—What is said to be the largest financial transaction in the world's history took place here to-day. It consisted in the giving of a receipt for $1,260,134,946.57 by John G. McClung, the Treasurer of the United States, to Charles H. Treat, who retired from that office to-day, and is by an acknowledgment for that amount of securities in the vaults as of November 1. The practice is customary one with the change of treasurers.

"BLACK HAND" THREAT IS TIED TO A DOG

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio, Jan. 8.—As a result of a supposed Black Hand threat, Mrs. Oscar Parker, wife of a pottery manufacturer, is seriously ill. A fox terrier belonging to the family came home with a letter attached to his neck demanding a large sum of money under penalty of death before a week. Many hoax to all the members of the family.

FIRST PAPAL DELEGATE TO THE UNITED STATES DEAD OF LONG ILLNESS

ington, of which he was superior, and had the appointment of the rectors and professors.

When hope for Cardinal Satolli was abandoned the question of his probable successor came up. It has been stated that Cardinal Segna will probably take the place of the late prelate.

Among the many interesting and important events which marked the American experiences of Cardinal Satoli, none was of greater importance and interest than the reception and dinner tendered to him by President Roosevelt at the White House on June 21, 1904.

There were present at the dinner President Roosevelt, Secretary now President Taft, Secretary Hitchcock, Archbishop Farley, General Chaffee, Admiral Dewey, Maurice Francis Egan, now U. S. Minister to Denmark; Justice Peckham, of the Supreme Court, Monsigner O'Keefe, Mater Ballinger, Chief Justice Arellano of the Philippine Islands, the Rev. I. J. Stafford, rector of St. Patrick's Church, Washington, deceased; Secretary Moody, now U. S. Senator Count Cantini, Monsigner Bonzano, Delegate of the Catholic University, now Archbishop Cudahy of San Francisco, Archbishop Ireland, the Rev. George Dougherty, the Rev. D. F. Gavan, private secretary to Cardinal Gibbons; the Rev. P. J. Ahern, S. J., the Rev. C. W. Currier, the Rev. W. S. Caughy and the Rev. Father Sotolli, a cousin of the cardinal.

Francis Satolli was born in Marsciano, in the archdiocese of Perugia, Italy, July 21, 1839. He came of a noble family, and one of his uncles was a bishop.

When still comparatively young he gained recognition as an eminent scholar, having graduated at the seminary at Perugia, at the college of the Propaganda and the academy of the Noble Ecclesiastic, Rome. His success in different research first won for him the regard of his great friend, the late Pope Leo.

Completing his studies Satolli was assigned to the faculty of the college of the Propaganda and in a remarkably short time became professor of theology and philosophy.

The work of teaching and the opportunity for study afforded research appealed strongly to Satolli and if he had been guided alone by his own inclinations he would have preferred to remain a teacher, but the church had need of him outside of the class room, and after a few years he was made Archbishop of Lepanto, and was consecrated by Pope Leo XIII, to represent the Vatican at the Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1892.

His first visit to this country, however, had been made many years before, he having come to America in 1883 as the Pope's personal representative to attend the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the consecration of the government and to preside at the opening of the Catholic University at Washington.

In 1893 he was appointed by Pope Leo XIII as first apostolic delegate to the United States, with headquarters at Washington. He remained in this position until 1897.

DEAN AMES OF HARVARD DEAD

Professor James Barr Ames, dean of the Harvard Law School for fifteen years, died to-day in the Hahnemann Hospital in Boston, N. H., where he had been for five weeks suffering from a nervous breakdown.

He was apparently gaining strength daily until yesterday, when he suffered such a serious relapse that Dr. Smith of Nashua was hurriedly sent for.

Dean Ames was a native of Boston and sixty-four years old. He developed the "case system" of teaching law, which is now considered the best method. His friends believe overwork caused his collapse.

WAKE BOY TO ARREST HIM

Seventeen-year-old Joseph MacInnis of No. 110 Main street, Malden, was pulled out of bed and arrested early to-day by Detective Sergeant Michael Crimmins on a charge of stealing two diamond rings valued at $300 from Mrs. Charles T. Choate of Parsonage road, Malden. The ring disappeared last May while MacInnis was working at the Choate house as a paper hanger. The boy disappeared. The police learned that he returned home this week, and Inspector Green of went to the house bright and early. MacInnis, being a juvenile, was held for a special hearing next Wednesday.

BUILDING MEN TO ASK RAISE

Two thousand building laborers affiliated with the four local unions of that calling in Cambridge and Brookline, will to-day be notified to send delegates to a big conference looking toward a raise in wages, to be held at the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. on the night of Wednesday, January 19. Their wage at present is thirty cents an hour for an eight-hour day.

Thomas Flanagan, business agent of Boston Local No. 223, to-day declared that while the wages of almost every other class of workmen in the building trades of Boston had been increased during the last six years, that of the building laborers had remained stationary. He says that the tremendous increase in the cost of living during that time.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

MAN KILLED, FIVE INJURED BY GIRDER

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—One man was killed, another mortally hurt and five others injured to-day when struck by a three-ton girder that broke from the hoisting cable on a nineteen-story office building on the corner of Twenty-fifth street and Fourth avenue.

NEAR-BURGLARS ALMOST SHOT!

Patrolman Arthur J. Flandgan found two men acting suspiciously as he thought on Marion street, West Lynn, just before dawn this morning. Flanagan started toward the men, who ran. "Halt," yelled Flanagan. The pair ran all the faster. Flanagan fired two shots and the fugitives fairly burned up the ground, making through the Centre Street school yard and away in the darkness. The neighborhood was roused by the shots. Detectives hastily dispatched from sundry windows in sleep alarm. Flanigan could find no trace of a gun or other unlawful acts of the two men.

ington, of which he was superior, and had the appointment of the rectors and professors.

When hope for Cardinal Satolli was abandoned the question of his probable successor came up. It has been stated that Cardinal Segna will probably take the place of the late prelate.

Among the many interesting and important events which marked the American experiences of Cardinal Satoli, none was of greater importance and interest than the reception and dinner tendered to him by President Roosevelt at the White House on June 21, 1904.

There were present at the dinner President Roosevelt, Secretary now President Taft, Secretary Hitchcock, Archbishop Farley, General Chaffee, Admiral Dewey, Maurice Francis Egan, now U. S. Minister to Denmark; Justice Peckham, of the Supreme Court, Monsigner O'Keefe, Mater Ballinger, Chief Justice Arellano of the Philippine Islands, the Rev. I. J. Stafford, rector of St. Patrick's Church, Washington, deceased; Secretary Moody, now U. S. Senator Count Cantini, Monsigner Bonzano, Delegate of the Catholic University, now Archbishop Cudahy of San Francisco, Archbishop Ireland, the Rev. George Dougherty, the Rev. D. F. Gavan, private secretary to Cardinal Gibbons; the Rev. P. J. Ahern, S. J., the Rev. C. W. Currier, the Rev. W. S. Caughy and the Rev. Father Sotolli, a cousin of the cardinal.

Francis Satolli was born in Marsciano, in the archdiocese of Perugia, Italy, July 21, 1839. He came of a noble family, and one of his uncles was a bishop.

When still comparatively young he gained recognition as an eminent scholar, having graduated at the seminary at Perugia, at the college of the Propaganda and the academy of the Noble Ecclesiastic, Rome. His success in different research first won for him the regard of his great friend, the late Pope Leo.

Completing his studies Satolli was assigned to the faculty of the college of the Propaganda and in a remarkably short time became professor of theology and philosophy.

The work of teaching and the opportunity for study afforded research appealed strongly to Satolli and if he had been guided alone by his own inclinations he would have preferred to remain a teacher, but the church had need of him outside of the class room, and after a few years he was made Archbishop of Lepanto, and was consecrated by Pope Leo XIII, to represent the Vatican at the Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1892.

His first visit to this country, however, had been made many years before, he having come to America in 1883 as the Pope's personal representative to attend the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the consecration of the government and to preside at the opening of the Catholic University at Washington.

In 1893 he was appointed by Pope Leo XIII as first apostolic delegate to the United States, with headquarters at Washington. He remained in this position until 1897.

DEAN AMES OF HARVARD DEAD

Professor James Barr Ames, dean of the Harvard Law School for fifteen years, died to-day in the Hahnemann Hospital in Boston, N. H., where he had been for five weeks suffering from a nervous breakdown.

He was apparently gaining strength daily until yesterday, when he suffered such a serious relapse that Dr. Smith of Nashua was hurriedly sent for.

Dean Ames was a native of Boston and sixty-four years old. He developed the "case system" of teaching law, which is now considered the best method. His friends believe overwork caused his collapse.

WAKE BOY TO ARREST HIM

Seventeen-year-old Joseph MacInnis of No. 110 Main street, Malden, was pulled out of bed and arrested early to-day by Detective Sergeant Michael Crimmins on a charge of stealing two diamond rings valued at $300 from Mrs. Charles T. Choate of Parsonage road, Malden. The ring disappeared last May while MacInnis was working at the Choate house as a paper hanger. The boy disappeared. The police learned that he returned home this week, and Inspector Green of went to the house bright and early. MacInnis, being a juvenile, was held for a special hearing next Wednesday.

BUILDING MEN TO ASK RAISE

Two thousand building laborers affiliated with the four local unions of that calling in Cambridge and Brookline, will to-day be notified to send delegates to a big conference looking toward a raise in wages, to be held at the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. on the night of Wednesday, January 19. Their wage at present is thirty cents an hour for an eight-hour day.

Thomas Flanagan, business agent of Boston Local No. 223, to-day declared that while the wages of almost every other class of workmen in the building trades of Boston had been increased during the last six years, that of the building laborers had remained stationary. He says that the tremendous increase in the cost of living during that time.

MAN KILLED, FIVE INJURED BY GIRDER

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—One man was killed, another mortally hurt and five others injured to-day when struck by a three-ton girder that broke from the hoisting cable on a nineteen-story office building on the corner of Twenty-fifth street and Fourth avenue.

NEAR-BURGLARS ALMOST SHOT!

Patrolman Arthur J. Flandgan found two men acting suspiciously as he thought on Marion street, West Lynn, just before dawn this morning. Flanagan started toward the men, who ran. "Halt," yelled Flanagan. The pair ran all the faster. Flanagan fired two shots and the fugitives fairly burned up the ground, making through the Centre Street school yard and away in the darkness. The neighborhood was roused by the shots. Detectives hastily dispatched from sundry windows in sleep alarm. Flanigan could find no trace of a gun or other unlawful acts of the two men.

TRYING TO FIND A LOST CORPSE

WORCESTER, Jan. 8.—An investigation is being made by officials of the Adams and National Express Companies to learn if the body of a person whose name has not been disclosed was taken to Paris by mistake. It is supposed that a body sent from a distant point to this city was sent to Paris by mistake during the day, because that no body consigned to one of the lines had gone astray.

JACK JOHNSON TO BE HERE NEXT WEEK FOR ENGAGEMENT

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

GEORGE MEMSIC GIVES WOLGAST A HARD BATTLE

WOLGAST BARELY WINS DECISION OVER MEMSIC.

By H. M. WALKER.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—Ad Wolgast barely nosed out a decision over George Memsic in the 10 rounds of sport-thrilling slugging before the Pacific A. C. at the Naud Junction pavilion to-night.

For the full fifty minutes the two men fought as no two lightweights ever battled here before. Not once during the ten rounds of vicious milling was either boy off his feet.

The superb condition of Wolgast won for him. Had he entered the ring without every ounce of his fighting strength with him the boy might have been dropped long before the finish of the tenth round.

From start to finish the boys cast aside all knowledge of boxing and stood toe to toe and slugged like a pair of fiends.

The first two rounds were even, in the third round Memsic had a shade the better of the sensation at slugging. Both men showed the effects of the pace by the time the fourth had been reached. This was an even round.

It was here that Wolgast's condition told. He opened up strong in the fifth. The round belonged to Ad, the boy in front of him faltering twice during the wild exchanges that were constantly featuring the battle.

The sixth, seventh and eighth were even. Wolgast had a shade in both the ninth and tenth, During these two final rounds Memsic fought back with all the venom of a wounded rattler, but his strength was gradually slipping away from him. He was a very tired boy at the finish, while Wolgast looked as though ten more rounds of the same stuff would not have harmed him.

Wolgast can congratulate himself that he trained faithfully for last night's engagement. Otherwise Sid Hester's Selma Wolgast show would have been crushed.

JACK JOHNSON WILL BE HERE NEXT WEEK TO APPEAR ON STAGE

Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion has decided to risk the former scenes of his triumphs, and will appear here next week in a theatrical engagement at the Old Howard.

Johnson, while a safe distance away in the West has many times been quoted as disliking this city and sidestracking it because of the harsh treatment he received at the hands of several unscrupulous people who lied and swore against him and pressed them in the courts when he last sojourned within our hospitable town.

Evidently the stage bookers has been going so badly in the Middle West that even though $100 at Pittsburg the other night and cancelled several one night stands that when he received an offer from a Boston theatre he jumped at the chance.

Johnson did not set the town on fire on his last visit here except scorching up the roads a bit in his automobile and paying a few Roxbury fines, he adhered to the rules formulated by the highway commission.

There will be considerable curiosity on the part of fight followers to size up Johnson's form since he was here several months ago and engaged in a contest at the Armory A. A. There have been reports that Johnson was not training for best of care of himself while following his stage tour, but the results of it will come out when he shows up in his act at the Old Howard.

The big black will be an invited guest at the Armory A. A. on Tuesday night and probably will occupy a ringside seat in order to say from the ring about his coming match with Jim Jeffries.

In the Danger Zone

KLAUS GETS A BIG SURPRISE IN RING BOUT

PITTSBURG, Jan. 8.—Sailor Burke, who had been advertised to fight the hard hitting Frank Klaus of Pittsburg six rounds, duked out of the match and Billy Berger, a youngster from the South Side, who has been in the fighting game about a year, went into the ring with Klaus.

The result was a fight the like of which has seldom been Pittsburg's fortune to witness. Berger proved a very hard proposition, taking a good beating in the first round, but hammering Klaus all over the ring in the second round.

At the close of the second he had the experienced Klaus rather bewildered, and he continued his good work in the third, fourth and fifth rounds.

The sixth and last round almost proved the undoing of Berger, however, for in his anxiety to finish Klaus he stepped into some stiff blows, which put him down for the count of nine. This was in the last minute of the round, but when he arose he again carried the fight to Klaus.

In the last minute of the round Klaus once more caught Berger with a good one and sent him down for the count of nine, but the round ended with both boys on their feet, fighting hard.

The showing of Berger will entitle him to a chance among the promising fighters. About 3,000 persons saw the affair.

MIKE DEE TAKES RUDDERHAM'S PLACE

BROCKTON, Jan. 8.—The friends of John Rudderham of Brockton are deeply vexed at the news that "Rosbie" will be replaced as trainer of the Philadelphia Athletics by Mike Dee, assistant to Mike Murphy, trainer at the University of Pennsylvania. Billy Murray's troubles with the Philadelphia Club boy put "Rosbie" in bad, as President Horace Fogel has promised Mike Murphy that he will place Dee on the job. "Rudder" is a Brockton boy, and is very well known in Brockton, where he lived for a time.

JOE NEALON IN GOOD STANDING WITH LEAGUE

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—The National Baseball Commission promulgated its findings regarding several former major league players whose reinstatement was asked for by the clubs with which they served before joining the California State League was sought by Secretary Morning of that organization.

Joe Nealon, former first baseman of the Pittsburg Club, is restored to good standing and awarded to the Oakland club.

Elmer Strickfett and Thomas Sheehan, former members of the Brooklyn team, Monte Pfyle and outfielder Henderson are declared ineligible as members of the California League.

H. Smith, an outfielder, was awarded to the Chicago Nationals. The commission also declared the New York Americans guilty of rebooting in the case of Player Savage of Watertown, N. Y.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH wins notable praise. Splendid tribute paid to it by a leading Protestant minister of Boston. See SUNDAY AMERICAN.

FLYNN'S FATHER ONCE A CHICAGO PLAYER

If all the nice things now being said about Jack Flynn, Pittsburg's new first baseker, are true, the Holy Cross boy will be the sensation of the National League next season. Almost without exception baseball managers and scouts who have seen Flynn play are loud in his praise. Flynn's father used to play first base for the old Chicago National team years ago.

When Jack was at Holy Cross he used to do checking duty, and men who played on the same team with him, like Billy Doyle and Andy Cuddy, are ready if he had stuck to catching he would now be in the League. George Stallings, the Boston Americans and Flynn once, but never tried him out in a championship game. Hughey McBreen, secretary of the Red Sox, dashed off a letter to Dave Bancroft praising Flynn and Roy The Bostons placed Hoey in left field, but kept Flynn doing fungo batting for a week and then assigned him to first base.

SNOW RACES AT BROCKTON

BROCKTON, Jan. 8.—After several days' work on the snow path here the members of the Driving Club are now ready for the first meet of the Winter season. Harry C. Briggs of the club was appointed to look after the track, and the club has been granted permission to use Main street from Belcher to Byron avenue—a course admirably suited for sleds and will not interfere with traffic.

Several of the fleet-footed citizens of the club have hiked to the speedway. "Pa" Gerry, Melancholy Jones, Fred Pattee, Pattee's son Bonnie and Bonnie's horse, Robert E., gave his pride such a trimming during the latter part of the chilly season. Pa wanted to get back, but Cy Gibbs spoke.

A. A. Bradford, with Sam Telmo, appeared here, as did H. C. Briggs, with Baden Powell, and Joseph Hagen of Bridgewater with Tyrone Charlie. Frank Little held role behind a silver-looking box cutter, a present. Maine purchased and tested for the season. Many of these showed fleet on the snow, and Pa Gerry, Pansora and Bradford led the bunch.

There is more interest in snowpath racing this year than ever before, and a number of new steppers are promised before the end of the season.

Whitman horsemen have been at work on the Washington street speedway for a week and have it in fine shape for racing. Two heats ended the Brockton Club's first race participated in a ram pung there in the near future. Charlie Cush and Walter Wilde of the Whitman club colt, Teddy Mahar's Losing C, Charlie Cyler's Young Bryant, Mr. Wade's trotter, Dr. Copeland's Gleaway and John Lewis' Wilde John are the big guns in that visibility on the snowpath, and sport for racing is looked for.

James J. Powers has purchased a new racer, which he claims is the fastest thing in Brockton, and is he especially desirous of getting after H. C. Briggs's Baden Powell. Maybe he will be obliged.

OLD FITZ THE GAMEST AND BEST OF THEM ALL

They can batter poor old Bob Fitz's head into a pulp; they can lick him now as often as they please, but they cannot take away from him the glory of a most remarkable career that the prize ring has ever known. It looks as if any old bum or a dub fighter can bang one on the veteran's jaw at this stage of the game. It's said that this grand veteran of ancient days should have to be shown up this way at the gay old age of forty-seven years. But that does not dim the redhead's glorious past.

And in the game since 1880, too!

Standing out with remarkable distinctness in the page of year books and records of the ring, Bob Fitzsimmons is to-day, as he has been for years, the greatest middleweight fighting machine of all times.

And, moreover, he is the one—the greatest fighting that ever held out a bunch of knuckles to have gone through it.

Only a Middleweight.

He never was anything but a middleweight, yet he tackled the toughest of heavyweights and better men than Corbett, retired champion, and Johnson, present holder of the title, were called upon to face. Bob never pretended that a man's size was a case of "the bigger they are the harder they fall" with him. All he wanted was one shot at that jaw and it was general pay-off on him.

Many things contributed to make Fitzsimmons the greatest fighter of modern days as well as ancient, to say nothing of figure 8's. He was exceptionally clever in his own way, which wasn't anybody else's way. He had every trick that ever was known and held a number of copyrights on ring contraptions of his own. He could hit with either hand like a mule kicking, but the one thing that sticks out above them all was his wonderful gameness. Yet at times we hear it said that he was "yellow" and didn't like it," meaning, of course, the punishing.

Game in Every Battle.

Nobody likes that, so that can be dismissed as no evidence against a man's gameness.

Just skim your eye over the marvellous career of this old fellow, now the hapless victim of a knockout at the age of forty-seven years at the hands of one Bill Lang of Australia the other afternoon. Lang, a third rater, three of which Fitz could have handled in one ring ten years ago.

There isn't a single scrap in his entire list—and what a list that is!—that doesn't show that he was the gamest of any of them. Start right at the beginning, and take his fight with Peter Maher. The Irishman hung a haymaker on Fitz's chin in the opening round, and the redhead had the finest view imaginable of every star ever seen in the firmament. Never has a man been licked, too, that kneeled 'em dead. Yet Pitz came back and battled on as gamely as he forced Peter to stop in the twelfth.

Hail Battered Hulk.

Next peer into his second scrap, the one he won from Jim Hall, at the time Hall was at the height of his career, and was fought out in four rounds in Australia, and fought with the greatest confidence. He gave Bob the lambasting of his career for three rounds and a half, and it looked good for Fitz at that stage. But he kept boring in, and in the fourth round he landed a punch that not only knocked out Hall, but knocked out completely poor Jim out of the business.

About a year later Bob took on Gus Ruhlin, then a prosperous physical culturist, and a big one. This was a tough battle for Gus, for Jim almost put him out of business right at the start with one of his famous punches on the jaw. It was an overhand right, and everybody knows that Cherokee Jim could hit as hard as any of them and far more skillfully. Fitz afterward said he thought the roof had fallen in on him. But he stuck, wobbled through a couple of rounds, and in the fifth, when the police interfered, they said he was winning the battle.

Corbett Fight a Test.

That's gameness in large gobs for you.

Then, in your mind's eye, imagine yourself as the ringside at Carson City the afternoon Bob was fighting Corbett. More than once Jim seemed to be winning by at least a city block. Yet Bob got him out in the fourteenth after a fight that couldn't be classified as anything but unfair.

Next look at his scrap in 1900 with Gus Ruhlin at New York, this started out like a quarter horse, and in the seventh rounds was winning comfortably. But the old Cherokee hammering smilingly waited his chance, whipped in with the terrible shift that he had, and was certain in the sixth for the Swiss.

Fitz never displayed greater gameness in his life than he did against Jeffries in that fight. Put down and all but out early in the game with a crashing left swing on the point, Bob fought on and on, being, for four rounds, unable to hit a single solid punch because of the terrible punishment he was receiving. Still his courage never slumped, and he came back, big for the battle Brockwayite. Of course Bob didn't win that time, but he made one of the greatest struggles against insurmountable odds than man ever watched.

All in all, and considered from any angle of the game, Fitzsimmons was the greatest of them all. Let no man ever say, at least, that he wasn't game.

HORSE NOTES WINTER CHAT

A full brother of George Gano (2:03¾), named Wireless, will be raced next season.

The veteran trainer Peter V. Johnston is thinking of opening a public stable at Lagrion, Ky.

* * *

The fallibists at Memphis are predicting a mile fight at 2:02 for The Harvester (4) (2:06¾) next year.

* * *

Dr. Jack (2:11¼) is now a member of the Pittsburg matinee brigade and will be raced there by S. A. Pickering.

* * *

Egomine (2:12¾), that showed nifty well below 2:10 several seasons ago, will be tried against next season.

* * *

While Millard Sanders is conducting a public training stable at Indianapolis, he will still train whatever of the Kentucky Farm horses are selected to be raced.

* * *

Woodlark (2:12½), a Kansas product, is being cut down right to 2:05 another season. He got his present record on a two-lap track.

* * *

Charles W. Moore, Detroit, who owns Anso (2:04½) and Orton (2:07¾), will establish a farm at Coldwater, Mich., having purchased a farm of 300 acres and locks he will have Trainer Scott McLane to superintend affairs.

* * *

Kinney Al (2:14¼) has been purchased by Eastern parties from T. H. Ramsey, of Bird City, Kan. Kinney, a full brother to Al stallion is credited with trotting a mile in 2:10¾, and will probably be raced.

* * *

The first three-year-old division of the Chicago Horseman Futurity will be raced at the Lexington meeting. It is announced also that Detroit may not start the big stake this season, but will come in later.

* * *

Fred Ames is preparing for the snow races on the Charles River Speedway the pair of trotters, Ames Chief, 2:23¾, and Haynes, 2:23½. Those seem like the pacers that Fitz will have to meet, and matched in every particular with plenty of speed. Fred is going to bring them right for the word, be being the equal of any in the business.

BOXING NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Mike Schreck is about to announce his retirement from the ring. His career ends in a blaze of glory, having won with a punch in his last fight.

* * *

Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and Al Kaufman are hoping about steadily in their work for the title argument they are to have at the National Club, Philadelphia, on January 19.

* * *

Johnson is evidently aping Jim Jeffries. Jeffries' announcement that he would wallop a few hundred scribes for saying unkind things about him got on the champion's nerves. As soon as he had the chance he announced that he was going to rub one over on a sheriff. He didn't though. Neither did Jeffries.

SECOND AUTO SHOW TO OPEN IN NEW YORK TODAY

By J. C. KERRISON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The Grand Central Palace motor show is now a thing of the past New York, and in fact the country at large, is waiting expectantly the opening of the Madison Square Garden show this evening and wondering if it will unfold anything new, novel or unexpected in the line of motor vehicles and its accessories. It is doubtful. The motor season for 1910, so far as models are concerned, is greatly dividends, and there seems to be no reason whatever to expect any new departures. Everything is static and hustle at both buildings, one being dismantled and the other being constructed.

Thus has served its purpose and has served it well, in the minds of many, in having housed the best possible exhibit of the product of the leading manufacturers of motor vehicles, as these have been presented between now and then they were prior to the recent court decision regarding the Selden patent. But then that is another matter. It is an absolute fact that the show just closed was in every way the equal of any that have gone before; that it did an inestimable amount of good for the industry in general; that it created increased interest in affairs motor and started the new year with a boom that has been surpassed since the motor industry first found foot-hold in free American soil.

Record Attendance.

The closing day of the show saw the record attendance. Hundreds, yes thousands, were turned away, for not even the manufacturers had produced and to be completed in the limited space comparisons with the products which are this evening and will be on exhibition in Madison Square Garden. It really seems as though every manufacturer is now producing better cars than ever before, and no end of business is being transacted which will sooner or later have an effect upon the industry at large. Although the last day of the show, it retained its completeness until the very last. Manager Alfred Reeves adhered to the manner intended by the designer and maker.

Several of the exhibits that have been seen during the past week in the Lexington Avenue Building are now attracting crowds to Madison Square Garden, there to-night will be "dressed" makers will be in full feather.

The department of motor cars, pleasure or commercial, of course offered the greatest attractions to the thousands who constantly found some one thing or other most interesting to them. The display made by the Sewall Kerr company was a most pleasing and convincing one, the models displayed showing excellency of design and the last of engineering ability. These cars have earned a name and reputation for themselves, having forced themselves into the front rank of the motor cars of the year.

The cars contain many excellent features that make their owning features that have been stolen right and left, and which in the case are but slightly different from those contained in any of the selling for twice their retail price.

The limousine and touring cars are excellent products and their ability as good as speed calls have been proven in public as well as in private.

Special Rims for Tires.

In the accessory department it is rather a noticeable fact that almost all of the tire manufacturers are this year making special rims on their demountable or other wise. Each concern is showing its own particular product, although to the casual they all seem to have much the same general remarks.

In lamps there seems to have been as great a development as in any other line among the latest being the electric attachment for gas headlights, so that either gas or electricity can be used as the will and desire of the driver. Gray & Davis have produced an attachment of this kind, and which should be the cause of a great deal of attention and which promises to be very popular, especially with those who use city streets at night.

Several of the lighting sets, both the Heinze and Connecticut people have made a great deal of improvement in the product of coils and magnets. The Connecticut magneto is virtually a new construction and is constructed that in the case of the burning out of a magneto coil it is only necessary to take the armature and the defective coil removed just as easily as changing a spark plug.

The magneto can be disassembled by the removal of a single front screw and is so constructed that it cannot be put together again except in the manner intended by the designer and maker.

Several of the exhibits that have been seen during the past week in the Lexington Avenue Building are now attracting crowds to Madison Square Garden, there to-night will be "dressed" makers will be in full feather.

FOGEL WRONG ON BIG LAJOIE

Napoleon Lajoie remembers the first game he ever played in the National League, and many are the rumors what one critic, now a club owner, had to say about his ability. Larry broke into the National on August 21, 1896, Senators then leading the Phillies' opponents. Another newcomer on the Quaker club that day was Paul Geier, who now is the manager of the Burlington team of the Central Association. Horace Fogel, president of the Philadelphia Nationals, then was the leader of the club has appreciated his earnest working for the best interests of the team and has a way of doing the substantial.

Lajoie has been rewarded for giving Maddox every opportunity to make good this year by being left in left field, and it looks as if a lack of work, as was the case last year.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH wins notable praise. Splendid tribute paid to it by a leading Protestant minister of Boston. See SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Napoleon Lajoie, against Washington, August 15, 1898, Mercer pitching—Five times at bat, two runs, one base, two putouts, and no errors. Larry played first base in this game, which was won by Philadelphia by a score of 9 to 0.

Napoleon Lajoie, against Washington, July 19, 1897, McJames pitching—Two times at bat, one hit, two runs, two base hits, one assist, no errors. Heinie played centre field in this game, which was won by Louisville by a score of 9 to 2.

CROWLEY JOINS MARATHON PROS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Jim Crowley is the latest athlete to run loose from the amateur ranks, and join the professional ranks. Crowley was always the best of the amateurs left in the Marathon running game, but he is no longer able to see where he can get any kind of a run of twenty five mile race for a medal.

Crowley has signed under the management of "Sparrow" Robertson, and will go after some of the big money Tribes and Perlow are threatening to offer for a professional Marathon in Madison Square Garden.

HOOPER SIGNS WITH RED SOX

Harry Hooper, the speedy outfielder of the Red Sox, is the latest player to send in a signed contract. His acceptance of the club's terms came to-day in a letter from Hooper, in which he lives. Hooper says he has been taking things easy this Winter and is in good shape for next season.

Tom Madden has also signed up for the season, and the fans out around Roxbury Crossing are happy once more.

Burlington is a brilliant candidate for more salary over last season and the player was given a substantial raise. The leader of the club has appreciated his earnest working for the best interests of the team and has a way of doing the substantial.

Lajoie has been rewarded for giving Maddox every opportunity to make good this year by being left in left field, and it looks as if a lack of work, as was the case last year.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH wins notable praise. Splendid tribute paid to it by a leading Protestant minister of Boston. See SUNDAY AMERICAN.

MAURICE DALY GIVES A FEW BILLIARD POINTS

By ED. COGSWELL.

Ever hear of Maurice Daly, three times champion billiard player of the world? If you haven't then there is little use of saying what you know about billiards, and for that reason those you should read what he has to say about becoming proficient in the real parlor sport of them all. These are the directions he gives!

Possibly no other game offers greater opportunity for strategic calculation on the part of the player than billiards. Without "position play" it were a poor game indeed.

It is the purpose of the writer to give in this series of articles, some general indications of "First Principles of Position Play." Not the readers the still more elaborate description of fancy shots nor of the extremely fine calculation which the highest class professional player must undertake, but merely some guide for the average player who knows some billiards, can average, say, from one to three at a straight rail, three ball billiards—who has mastered the stroke well enough to make ordinary draw and follow shots, but has not gone much further.

Precepts That Are Useful.

And first let no indicate a few general precepts will be useful:

First—Don't shoot hard unless there is a specific reason for doing so. Let the cue ball nicely record its consecutive (or second) object ball. This is known as kissing "shoal." The "kiss" ball is dangerous. Generally speaking, a shot that leaves your cue ball far from the second or two object balls is a bad shot.

Second—Seldom, never, drive both balls.

Third—Don't drive unless you have to.

Fourth—Generally avoid the long drive if the short drive is even "almost" as good. A percentage of chance is always against you on long drives, even when they look simple. You cannot tell about the last few inches of the ball's course in long drives. A ball driven lengthwise of the table has twenty or more feet to go, and the difference of an inch in its stopping place may mean the difference between a good and bad position.

Fifth—Make up your mind before "addressing" the ball (taking cue position) which shot you are going to make and having selected the shot concentrate your attention on where you are going to hit the first object ball, carefully avoiding letting the eyes wander, while making the stroke, to the carom ball. Half of the success in making shots is in the habit of concentrated attention on the first ball.

Fred Eames Chances.

Well, we have had a champion with us this week in De Oro, who played Daly, John, by the way is his surname, at the Imperial. This was a match for De Oro in preparation for his big one next week in New York with Fred Eames for three cushion championship of the world.

Boston enthusiasts are interested over what Eames can do in this struggle, but it is well to state right here that he is under a little disadvantage through having to wear glasses when playing.

Eames has had none too good eyes for some time, but it is within the past year that he has been compelled to wear glasses when playing billiards. Some say he's Fred, though, and he will say so is in prime form for his match with De Oro.

Those knowing Eames, also, can back that under the he will play the game of their life. Five games three hundred up that he is the equal of any. If not the best. That plays four cushion. It is safe to say that no matter what the result is that Eames carries the well wishes of his friends in this city.

After his match with Eames, De Oro leaves for California, where he has a three weeks' engagement at the new billiard and pool palace opened by Graney in San Francisco.

Allen Didn't Make Record.

Before leaving Boston, De Oro called at The AMERICAN to dispute the claim made in certain papers that Benny Allen made a new record in consecutive balls in his recent match with Hueston at Mish Murray's, and plainly gave evidence that it was all to the bad in believing such dope. The world's record in consecutive balls in a championship match is held by Dericq of 79 balls made in New York in 1909.

So it's easy to be seen that the Benny Allen record of 85 balls is exploded through his not making the number stretch to rule, which would require his cleaning up five frames and then five more balls in a single run.

About accepting the challenge from Hueston to play him a match in which one might be given the next to three-cushion billiards and the third to 18.2 balkline, De Oro says that he does not care about playing Hueston any more. In this De Oro furthermore remarks that in challenging for a straight match in pool or three cushions, of course, he is obliged to recognize Hueston, but outside of this he never cares to meet him.

Yatter Offers $200 Tournament.

Moses Yatter has a proposition that should take with the cushion carom players in New England. He offers to give $200 in prizes for a tournament at his games, open to all New England, and a trophy to be worth $250 that is not to won three consecutive times before becoming the permanent property of the winner.

It has been nine years since we have had a cushion carom tournament in this city and it is now the right time to have a most successful one. Yatter has surely struck the proper gait in making the good offer he has and it is up to the cushion players to get into line and enter the tournament.

It will not be of use for any to claim how good they are after this proposition, as here is a chance to prove what every body just what kind of a player at that style of game one is.

Ed Splaine says that he is doing more business this Winter at the Hub than since he has been there. This is like with what is doing at all of the billiard parlors in the city showing the wonderful growth of the game.

In a few days we will have a look on those in Splaine's Class A billiard tournament. It is anticipated that nothing in the 14.2 billiard amateur players has approached it in Boston.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF POSITION PLAY

1—Keep the balls in the "short table."

2—Give short drives preference over long.

3—Avoid driving both balls.

4—Don't drive until you have to.

5—Land "dead" on the carom ball.

6—Keep both object and balls "ahead" of you.

HOPE THAT FIGHT GOES TO 'FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—There is a possibility that the Jeffries-Johnson fight may be pulled off in San Francisco proper, although no pistols battles have been held in this city since the days of the historic California Club, which flourished nearly twenty years ago.

This is the situation in a nutshell:

The laws of California say that glove contests may be licensed, but they must be limited. It is possible to pull off a fight of 999 rounds, but not a finish engagement. Some twenty-eight years ago the Supervisors of this city passed a law limiting fights to twenty-five rounds. Later it was amended limiting bouts to twenty rounds, and this law has been in effect for more than ten years.

A new Board of Supervisors will take the oath of office within the next few days. It is understood all along the line that San Francisco will be "turned wide open." One of the most influential members of the Board is John L. Hergel, known in the ring circles generally as "Young Mitchell," one of the greatest of middleweight fighters.

He is to be the chairman of the committee that will pass upon prize fight permits, and, according to the best information, Hergel and his followers will amend the present law, and thus make forty-five rounds possible within the city limits proper.

Jack Gleason is polling all the political wires in the interest of the Hergel and the other Supervisors up to his behalf, and nothing can be published about it this committee holds its first meeting, which probably will be next Monday afternoon.

HONUS WAGNER FOR CONGRESS

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—After correcting just about all the baseball records and as much of the filthy lucre as the average ball player does in a decade and a half of serving, greater honors may be destined for Honus Wagner, the Flying Dutchman.

In fact, a movement is now on foot to boom the great Honus for Congress, and the residents of Carnegie, Democrats and Republicans alike, are eager to send the player who has long upheld Pittsburg's prestige on the diamond, to the halls of Congress.

Honus is a Republican, but he would have a solid Democratic vote. The fact that Wagner is a gentleman has not detracted one iota from the admiration he has among his fellow-players in the National League.

There are many, however, who believe that Wagner is far better as a ball player than he would ever be as Congressman, and they cannot picture Honus, the conservative and silent, arising and making a speech of more than a few dozen words. The man who does not care to discuss baseball would hardly take a chance discussing the tariff or any other topic in Washington.

MAXIM GORKY'S LATEST—Read "The Wise Men and the Workers," in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

STRAIGHT DOPE

FOR SPORT FANS

THIS IS A NEAR TRAGEDY WHICH happened last night, and say, isn't one of the characters quite familiar to you? I mean the little whiffet who takes advantage of the fact that he's as small as one would have him.

DRAMATIS PERSONAE.

The Whiffet, five feet with his high-heeled shoes on, weight about 120, owner not at all.

Chorus—Crowded cardinal of passengers, standing on straps and car.

Ajax Whelan, Pretty Girl and Heathen Guard.

P. G. accidentally jostles Whiffet, who glares savagely at F. B. G.'s head back and says some words to Pretty Girl. "That fellow must be looking for trouble."

Pretty Girl—Don't hurt him, George.

F. B. G.—Not much, Ajax Whelan.

ACT 2. Scene—Same car further out the line. Whiffet and Pretty Girl, missing exit, pass F. B. G. who is dancing in the middle of car. Whiffet gets to door, fixes and stakes finger at F. B. G. in rage.

Whiffet—I'll get you yet, you big stiff!

Pretty Girl—Come on, George. You're a beast and if you are little, I don't hurt him.

The Whiffet—I'll let him alone now for your sake. But I'll get him some time.

Finale—Illimous laughter by chorus and F. B. G. Quite some more rage by Whiffet, who gets off car and tries to kick a passing pole in half.

(Curtain.)

HERE IS A MAN WHO TAKES ISSUE with a lot of the sport critics when he points out that Johnson is going to beat Jeff, and maybe he's right. I'm one of the bunch that can't figure out that Jeff can get back in sufficiently good shape to beat the negro, but if I'm wrong this time it won't be the first mistake I have made, and if Jeff says the big negroid can do it I'm going to be mighty glad I was wrong. You read one side of it the other day, now something else.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Dear Doug—Reading the SUNDAY AMERICAN I see the majority of experts and fistic fighters seem to think Jeffries will have a show against Johnson. They all ask can he come back, but the question to my mind is thinking is has he gone back since his last fight?

The majority fall into the common mistake of comparing Jeff with Fitzsimmons, Sharkey and other fighters who are supposed to be old age and who have not the natural inheritance of Jeff, who is still in the prime of life.

The fact is brought out in regard to Jeff smoking cigarettes. They say this will hurt his wind. Did anyone ever notice Jeffries' wind in one round? Laugh-ed, who, probably, remembers Jeff's fight with Ruhlin, Corbett, Fitzsimmons and Sharkey, can certainly say off as to his wind. Jeffries, who had a few rounds with Jack Johnson, who was in the best of condition and with one well directed punch, and a few more like it, put him out.

Johnson we see above is a fast, clever fighter and a good one, but Jeffries is the only mighty Jeffries that will probably realize what he is up against and shorten up his style to suit the occasion. Yours for good sport and fair play, W. J. H.

Cambridge, Mass.

HARVEY PARKER, THE OLD-TIME lightweight wrestling champion, tells me that his protege, Paul Bowser, has gone to Pittsburg in search of more experience, and that when he comes here again he will show the fans that he is championship timber. Bowser is only twenty-three years old, and this is his first season in the big game, which makes his recent showing against the best in the ought to know say Hoop can play a game at short equal to any man.

Charley Murphy offered $2,500 for Pitcher Humphreys last week. Then Fogel had another bid for him, and also would be owned Humphreys. He may give him a trial at Southern Pines before disposing of him.

* * *

Roger Bresnahan's New Year resolution is that he will play ball in every game the St. Louis Cardinals play next season. The only danger now is that he will make the records of McGuire and Gibson fade into obscurity.

* * *

Manager Ashenback of Altoona, and all of the Tri-State League players declare that if any team can beat them next season in the major league it is Outfielder Ayers. He declared to be "the good a base runner as Cobb."

* * *

Clarke Griffith, manager of the Reds, certainly has a big task on hand trying to imbue baseball in Cincinnati this Winter. Professionalism is very much in evidence this season and are after the Old Fox as they have a big contract to live up to and the indoor game professionally, and it is said to be catching the fever as a result of patching the games.

* * *

Richard Carle is a baseball fan. He solemnly declares the following incident actually happened: "One day during the world's series in Pittsburg I wired my wife to this effect: 'Meet me to see the Cubs and Tigers play.' After the contest, surprised that my wife had not attended the game, I returned to the hotel, where I learned that she had waited for me all day at the zoo."

YANKEE TEAM AFTER POLO CUP

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—American polisters have steadied their willingness to play their English rivals for the premier trophy of the sport. It was learned to-day. President Herbert and Secretary Hazard of the Polo Association accepted a provisional challenge for a match for the International cup from the Huntingham Club of London and requested that the provisional challenge be made formal.

An early date for the matches was urged. It is desired to have them occur, if possible, in August, so that they can be played in Newport when the season at the wateringplace is at its height.

Nothing succeeds like circulation. The AMERICAN has quantity and quality.

WHERE DAHLEN BEATS TY COBB

Joe Tinker, the Cubs' crack shortstop in a recent fanning bee in Chicago, had this to say about Ty Cobb, the dandy Detroiter: "I hear a lot about Cobb cutting down infielders getting around bases. Why didn't he spike me when he had a chance in the world's championship series of 1907 and 1908? Simply because I know a base runner's rights and stay in my place. Cobb rides hard, and a baseman ought to know enough to give him room. No one in the world slides as hard as Frank Chance, but he never spikes anyone because basemen know him and clear the track. In some of the games of our world's series with Detroit Cobb slid into first and second so hard that he tore the bags out of place, but we didn't get hurt, and we didn't give him any more room than was coming to him, either.

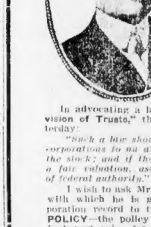
FITZGERALDISM

TAFT TRUST POLICY



I have shown that the entire scheme of Mr. Storrow's pahl advertising was conceived in falsehood. That was intended to be criticism was degenerated into abuse. The people know my answers. They know that the charges are false.

I wish to quote—word for word—the opinion of President Taft against the corporation practices of James I. Storrow, the millionaire candidate for Mayor. Read every word carefully. When the President of the United States speaks to the people, every true citizen should give it careful attention.

In advocating a law for the "Federal Control and Supervision of Trusts," the President said, in his message of yesterday:

"Such a law should provide for the issue of stock of such corporations to an amount equal only to the cash paid in on the stock; and if the stock be issued for property, then at a fair valuation, ascertained under approval and supervision of federal authority."

I wish to ask Mr. Storrow if he has made the millions with which he is generally credited by living up in his corporation record to the TAFT PRINCIPLE AND POLICY—the policy of every man in America who believes in honest value for an honest dollar.

"Corporations organized under this act should be prohibited from acquiring and holding stock in other corporations (except for special reasons under approval by the proper federal authority), thus avoiding the creation, under national auspices, of the holding capital with subordinate corporations in different states, which has been such an effective agency in the creation of the great trusts and monopolies."

The people of Boston have heard you orating about "honesty," about "a fair return for every dollar spent by the city," and a great many other high sounding terms, MR. STORROW.

But what I should like to know, and I have asked you the question potentially every day for weeks, is this:

Did you make your enormous fortune by corporation practices, thus forcibly condemned by President Taft?

Did you make your fortune by placing the price of the necessities of life, such as food or clothing?

Will you read the above comment of the President of the United States and say to the voters of Boston:

"My name is James J. Storrow. I have been associated with the United Fruit Co., the United Shoe Machinery Co., the United States Smelting Co. and other great corporations and trusts. I gathered unto myself a great fortune within the past ten years. But I am an honest man."

Will you make this statement, MR. STORROW?

Here is my statement to the voters of Boston:

"My name is John F. Fitzgerald. I have been 20 years in public life. My record has been searched and searched for flaws. I have been painted as black as political intrigue can paint me. But I am an honest man."

I shall repeat that statement in Tremont Temple tonight, MR. STORROW.

If it isn't true, will you be present to deny it, or send a message that I can read to the people?

What Really Makes a Woman an Old Maid

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE general opinion is that a woman unmarried at a certain age is an old maid.

In reality, age has least to do with old maidishness.

The qualities that make a woman an old maid are primness, prudishness, narrow-mindedness, self-introspection, lack of sympathy, and a dozen more equally unlovable qualities.

And I know many women, considered by the world to be old maids, who have not one old-maidish quality about them.

The world in general—and men in particular—has a half-contemptuous pity for old maids, and do you know why?

Not because they are lonely or old or poor, or any reason of that kind. Simply because they have not found a husband.

A man looks on his wife's old maid sister as a good woman, one who will help his wife out when the children have measles, and look after house and children when he and his wife go away.

Old Maids From Choice

As a person of interest, a woman of individual likes and dislikes, she is as nothing in his eyes.

All bachelors consider themselves bachelors from choice. Might it not be possible that old maids are sometimes old maids from choice?

I do not for an instant say that any woman prefers singleness to marriage with a man she loves, but I do say that many women remain single because their love affairs have gone wrong.

Also many women are single because they are too hard to suit. They put off marriage until the first thing they know they have stepped across the old maid line, and the men prefer married women.

It is women's own fault that the term "old maid" had come to be one of reproach. For hundreds of years woman has thought that the only career open to her was matrimony.

She married and had everything or she remained single and had nothing. Married women had all the privileges, single women all the drawbacks.

And then one fine day woman awoke to the fact that, though happy marriage still ranked first and best, there were other alternatives than mooning in the chimney corner. She found that she could still be attractive and interesting even if she did not have the magic prefix "Mrs." before her name.

Some Are Born Old Maids

There will always be old maids till the end of time, for some women are born that way. Their characters are as full of naïveté as their persons.

Little children never think of putting their soft, grubby little pads on that kind of an old maid's knee, and a man never finds himself talking confidentially to her, sure of her interest and sympathy in return.

This is the kind of old maid who in story books lives in a cottage with a black cat.

There are to-day hundreds of sunny-hearted, charming women, who have passed the age-mark of spinsterhood.

The women who are doing something, who are supporting themselves or helping others. They have many friends of both sexes. A man does not groan when he finds himself seated next to this kind of an old maid at dinners. He knows that he will enjoy an evening with a broad minded, sympathetic woman, who views life with generous tolerance, and who is interested in all topics of the day.

If you are an old maid be a new-fashioned one, not the old-fashioned, sour-hearted person that old maids used to be.

Man is very fine, but surely it is not worth while spoiling and souring your whole life merely because you have not married.

USES POWDER

"Father," asked Georgie, "what does crackswan mean?"

Mr. Browning told him it meant a robber who uses powder.

"Then," observed Georgie, "mamma must be a crackswoman. She uses powder."

PERHAPS, AT THAT

"Do you ever shake?" Mildred, aged five, was asked.

"No'm. I tried it once," was the sober answer. "My ankles turned. I guess I've got what they call nearly turned anklus."

A Cat Show---Why Not a Kitten Show?---By Nell Brinkley

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

"Sometimes it's a cat show, for never a man gets by the cat at the end to visit with the "kittens."

CATS and cats—fluffed and plumed and oil fed, so their coats may be sleek—dined on liver, so their topaz and emerald eyes may be bright!

Night-black devil, with two high lights, in all his gloom, his Irish-green riband and his two green Hallowe'en moons for eyes, alongside a turquoise-eyed arctic cherub cat, white as an angel, with a tail like a snow-heavy fir tree bough. A witch's plume and a fairy's muff! A sleek, close-furred Oriental from heathen Siam, and after him a Bengal-striped fur cat from Persia! One with the face of a chimney sweep, or a chalked and sooted Pierrot; ears and nose and tail smudged as if charcoaled artist fists had reached to adore him; the other tiger-like, silent, touchy, with opal eyes intent and seer-like, secretive, half aloof and gone dream-gathering through the ages, an aristocrat with a marvellous, jewel-shot satin floor to the liquid ball of her eyes.

A luminous-eyed, plain house tabby, with fur as close and rich as sealskin, her two haus-frau paws folded white under her chest, makes the happy noise in her rough throat and smiles amply at a soft, gray "Hindoo" person with long, shaggy fur and two strange, unsmiling moonstone eyes and curled-up mouth corners, with an old-rose crushed bow under her gray silk ear.

Cats, cats—with little star lights in their eyes; with green eyes and blue eyes and golden ones and gray ones like dull silver; eyes with the pupils widened into quaking, great black pools, and eyes with a hair-like black gash, up and down, and the rest of their eyes filled and colorful with light.

Cats and cats—cat shows. Whyn't a kitten one?

Every night by the light o' the city you can spy a kitten party a-going pleasuring, chattering silk and fur troop; every night you can find 'em in great bouquets at a dance, chirping, crowned by a splendid-eyed, royal, sphinx-gazed cat; a knot of pink and white buds swayed by one great crimson queen rose.

Sometimes, pussies, it's a cat show even at that, for "divil" a boy gets beyond the circle at whose outer rim sits the gorgeous feline person with a smile and a way "wid her."

Why not a kitten show? They might have one fawny, haughty grown-up to chaperon 'em if they liked; to eye them absently when they cut up too many "pigeon wings" and bubbled too ecstatically under all the adoration they'd get.

Prof. Polydore Tells of Love Lines in Palm

By IRVING R. BACON

MRS. POLYDORE—Is there any marking in the hand, Polydore, dear, by which you can tell whether a person is in love?

POLYDORE—Not only that, but even the particular kind of person with whom he is in love. For instance, take yourself. The ball of your thumb is very large and beautifully developed and of a lovely pink complexion. Moreover, it is smooth—that is, it is not criss-crossed with a lot of lines, as you very often see in people's hands.

Now this means that you have an affectionate nature, an exceedingly warm, sympathetic heart. Incidentally, also, it signifies a fondness for flowers and music, particularly melody. A criss-crossed surface would denote a vicious, inordinate love.

The Unbroken Heart Line

As a confirmation of your ideally affectionate disposition, that conspicuous line across the fingers—the heart line—runs deep and unbroken clear across the entire hand. This argues so much heart as to make jealousy inevitable. Pardon me for reverting to this, my darling. It is a subject fraught with danger, for it has often led to complications between us. But I am sure you know by this time that I intend no offence when I say that one with that marking simply cannot help being jealous.

MRS. P.—I think you are unnecessarily diffuse in your accentuation of that feature of my hand.

POLY.—Well, despite all the joking remarks I may ever have made about your heart line, you can be perfectly sure I'm exceedingly proud and happy it is there in view of the fact that there is a line branching upward from it toward the little finger.

How Polydore Knew He Was Loved

MRS. P.—Why should that fill you with so much glee?

POLY.—Because it shows that the warmest spot in your heart goes out toward a person of the Mercurian type. And I'll stake my reputation as a palmist on a wager that you'll find never an individual that's more a Mercurian than I. And, as if that little upward branching line were not enough to show how much you think of me, your heart line curves upward out of its straight course in an unmistakable effort to reach the little finger.

MRS. P.—Now how can you tell that it is not some other Mercurian gentleman the heart line points for?

POLY.—For two reasons—nay, three! One is that on the edge of your hand in the space between the little finger and the heart line there is a single little line, clear-cut and pink. That is a so-called line of affection. If there were more than one the individual would be that, in the course of your life, you would be fickle and deeply in love, as many times as there are lines of that description. As you have but one, and that a deep one, that shows a single one out from among all men as your husband, why should I not indulge in self-congratulation?

And Why He Was Sure of It

The next reason is that your heart line is free from defects throughout its entire course. It is an ideal line of constancy. And, finally, the third reason that makes me think so confidently that I am the Mercurian for whose sake your heart-strings have, so to speak, curved your heart line out of its channel, is that I am too devotedly, too distractedly, in love with you to think otherwise.

MRS. P.—Your instinct and science are both unerringly correct. Without you, my own dearest Polydore, this world, though it were peopled with nothing but Mercurian men, would seem to me a void and barren waste.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

CONTEMPLATES DIVORCE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young married woman and have two little girls. My married life has proven one of sorrow and disappointment, caused by the neglect of my husband. I loved my husband very much and trusted him. But he abused that love and trust, caused me to lose faith in him and neglected me in every way possible, even going so far as to beat me and not support my little ones. Finally I left him and took up my burden alone. After great hardships I went back to my husband, after he had promised to treat me right, which he did, but only for a little while. Finally I found that his cruel treatment no longer and induced him to go away, saying I would join him when he sent for me. I do not want to go to him, but he expects me to do so. I do not believe in divorce, as always is God's teachings. But do you think I would be breaking that commandment by freeing myself or would it be disgracing my little ones?

A MOTHER.

I AGREE with you that divorces is almost the last thing to be thought of, but there are times when a legal separation is the only possible solution to the difficulty. If you appeal to the courts, your husband will be obliged to do something for the support of the children and that would be the best course for you to pursue.

The Yellow Circle

A MODERN MYSTERY

By CHARLES E. WALK

Copyright, 1909, by A. C. McClurg & Co.

CHAPTER XXII.

A Mute Appeal

CULLIMORE arrived before McPerren's gaudy front only a few minutes after Flint's advent, and prior to entering he paused irresolute on the walk—just as Flint had done, but from quite different motives. He was still filled with wonderment that Cole should have sent him here.

All at once he espied the yellow circle on the window benchboard—Kelsey's token, cast like a buried hook in a stream—and his wandering look was immediately arrested. He stared at it with considerable amazement. Likewise he was more than a little disturbed by its presence.

During an anxious glance up and down the deserted street, he drew nearer and inspected it more closely and in a moment succeeded in identifying it.

On the wedding eve he had been awaiting a message from "The Master"; this same symbol on the doorstep, earlier in the day, had afforded him a means of identifying the messenger.

Then at nightfall he had answered a summons of the bell. He recalled that a couple of ladies and a little girl were passing at the moment, chatting gayly and laughing, and it was not until they had gone by that a rough, shabby man hastened up to him and whispered in his ear the password.

He had thereupon thrust into Cullimore's hands a small brass box, dissolving, like a ghost, into the shadows. He remembered vaguely the man's unshaven face and repulsive features as they had abruptly appeared in the square of light from the open door. He had never seen him before or since.

However, this signal might be weeks—even months—old; the cross indicated that it had been responded to, anyway. It did not once enter Cullimore's head to connect it with any one on the interior of McPerren's, and his final conclusion was that the spot had been chosen simply because it was a favorable one whereon to catch the attention of the person to whom the signal was directed.

Cullimore Meets Flint

Thus disposing of the circle, Cullimore proceeded into the bar room. A minute later he handed Phineas Flint the envelope.

From frank bewilderment Flint's keen insight cut straight through the whole gamut of succeeding emotions to an appreciation of the fact that the note did a message intended for his eyes alone.

Only for a moment did he consider that Cole really intended to demand $10,000, of that he had written under coercion. Still the characters revealed on unstenciled, as of straws of weakness, and a second thought suggested that the message might have been wrung from him by threats directed against some one else. This was a very grave possibility in the light of Miss Gervaise's unexplained flight in her automobile that morning.

But, then, if so, why had it been directed to him. No, Cole intended to convey some message to him; it had to be veiled, and it was up to him to uncover it.

Then, in the twinkling of an eye, the concluding picture stood out from the rest of the missive, as if inscribed in letters of fire. "——— is in for intermarriage." The word had come to be common enough between them for it to assume an important significance in new circumstances.

Yet, powerful as was his feeling at that moment, his always combined composure and his regard toward abstractedly on Cullimore's left arm, midway between shoulder and elbow. Purposeless as that regard appeared to be, it disturbed the man, for it gave the arm an involuntary twist, as if the body were a ponderable something that could be shaken off. The movement apparently succeeded, for, at once the fur-nosy expression vanished, and Flint, seeming to awake to the matter in hand, transferred his attention to a survey of the newcomer.

In a natural, friendly manner he suddenly slipped a hand beneath the arm he had been regarding so absently, as if to draw its owner to one of the tables; in the next instant Cullimore had disengaged it. He was plainly uneasy.

The Arm with the Band

Flint, however, appeared not to notice the shift; he began speaking pleasantly, his manner affable; but beneath his cheerful air it had been, he had satisfied himself of the presence of something harder than garments and human flesh. Cullimore's arm was encircled by a metal band. Immediately Flint conducted him to the table where Kelsey still lay face downward.

"Before we get down to our errand," he was saying, "I would like for you to tell me whether you know this man."

Pursued at such a request, Cullimore nevertheless followed his agreeable guide to the table in the shaded corner. At a private signal Spencer moved up nearer the twain, halting just as Flint once more turned the dead man's face up to the light.

The effect upon Cullimore was instantaneous and extraordinary. With a choking cry he staggered backward and would have collapsed upon the floor had not Spencer guided his errant movement to a chair, upon which he dropped weak and limp.

THAT'S WHY

"Why is the baby so pink?" Gladys asked the nurse when her little sister first came.

At a loss for a better answer, the nurse said it was because the baby was so new.

"That's so," said Gladys, "I've noticed the same thing about new potatoes."

How to Get Rid of Catarrh

A Simple, Safe, Reliable Way, and It Costs Nothing to Try.

Those who suffer from catarrh know its miseries. There is no need of this suffering. You can get rid of it by a simple, safe, inexpensive home treatment discovered by Dr. Blosser, who for over thirty-five years has been treating catarrh successfully.

His treatment is unlike any other. It is not a spray, douche, salve, cream, or inhaler but is a more direct and thorough treatment than any of these. It cleans out the head, nose, throat and lungs so that you can again breathe freely and sleep without that stopped-up feeling that all catarrh sufferers have. It heals the diseased mucous membranes and arrests the foul discharge, so that you will not be constantly blowing your nose and spitting, and at the same time it does not poison the system and ruin the stomach, as internal medicines do.

If you want to test this treatment without cost, send your address to Dr. J. W. Blosser, 210 Walton Street, Atlanta, Ga., and he will send you by return mail enough of the medicine to satisfy you that it is all he claims for it as a remedy for catarrh, catarrhal headaches, catarrhal deafness, asthma, bronchitis, colds and all catarrhal complications. He will also send you free an illustrated booklet. Write him immediately.

TO-DAY'S BEST STORY

MR. SPROGGINS—And if I decline to let you have my daughter, what do you propose to do?

Mr. Wibbleson—I warn you that in that case we are prepared to act. Even now, beloved Aurelia has her best clothes on and awaits me near a railway station. If you decide against us we will flee together and never come back.

Mr. Sproggins (without a moment's hesitation)—Then I refuse.

"How My Boy Was Cured of the Grip by Using Father John's Medicine."

(By Mrs. Hattie A. Smith.)

Mrs. Hattie A. Smith in a recent letter says: "Father John's Medicine ought to be in every home. My poor little boy, seven years old, had the grip and was sick for ten days. I was much worried over him. He had a very high fever and pains all over him. I had a bottle of Father John's Medicine at one time when I was sick with a cold in my chest and back, and it did me so much good that now I got a small bottle for Joseph. It relieved him so much that I got a large bottle one day Saturday. It will not let me forget to give it to him at bedtime. He is back in school now, and is feeling fine."

The Idiocy of Mere Man

"H'M!" said Aunt Amelia, as she turned with unnecessary fervor the heel of the stocking she was knitting.

The good-looking, matronly woman who was watering the Boston fern turned quickly. "Now, Aunt Amelia," she exclaimed, "what have I done that's wrong? You used to make exactly the same disapproving noise when I was ten years old and spoke cookies.

"I was merely telling Rosamund things for her own good. She's a pretty girl, if she is my own daughter, and I want her to be popular and worthy of her blood."

"H'm!" said Aunt Amelia, again. She poked a knitting needle reflectively through the hole at her wrist. "I don't know," she admitted, "that you said anything wrong. You were advising Rosie to be self-sacrificing and thoughtful of others and to get up early mornings, so she could accomplish more. That's exactly what the proper sort of mother is expected to say. Still, if Rosie follows your advice, she'll be left at the post, all right."

"Why, Aunt Amelia?" cried the matron in woman, sitting down in surprise at her relative's acerbity.

"I think I've picked up a lot of sharp since the boys down home went to college," Aunt Amelia explained with an air of pride. "I've kept up with the times since you were married, Anastasia! And you notice lots of things as you grow older.

Selfish—but Had Bright Eyes

"I was just thinking," went on Aunt Amelia, almost two girls down at home and wondering why every human man is an exception to the rule.

"You give my man the sort of girl he ought to like and he backs away and shows his head over the other kind, and then expects you to congratulate him on having succeeded in making his choice life miserable.

"They were the Green girls, Emma and Beulah, and when you married and went away they were making calf eyes.

"Well, when they grow up, if ever there was a selfish bit of humanity it was Beulah Green. She had dot Indoors! She was just plain, downright lazy. Dood didn't think much about her points, though. Sometimes I'd get mad at her sprawling through her lessons at you-only-see-me-when-I'm-ready for any good than that was going.

"Emma was just as pretty as Beulah, but she was quiet and she didn't look at you through her eyelashes.

"She had good, gray eyes as open and clear as lakes and a fashion of sewing down to the bottom of your mind where you had thought a small, unbelievable part of your self and thought it hidden. Not that Emma was a prig—she was just an exceptionally full, sweet-natured girl.

Emma, the Generous One

"Their mother was delicate and Emma used to get up early and see that breakfast was right for father and the boys. Usually Beulah and her lackland ways upsides. She said that since Emma was up for breakfast there really was no sense in her getting up, too.

"Emma knew how to cook and Beulah frankly said: 'Mother did the kitchen and I'll run the dining room.' And she'd never let on that out there her face was put hands and gown grubbier.

"Emma made herself the prettiest sort of dresses and bonnets and Beulah got hers ready-made or had a dressmaker. She didn't darn father's socks for to wash and wasn't ever going to learn. She didn't mend much, because she said she wasn't going to spoil her eyes. Mostly she polished her finger nails and tried doing up her hair in new ways.

"In short, Emma spent her time doing things for other people and she was not naturally so generous and sweet she couldn't help it. She had all the virtues of a model woman besides plenty of good looks, and she was properly modest and reticent.

"When they went out anywhere there might be no more men or no who would paint out Emma because they had not ought to have seen the young fellows. They didn't care whether she knew or not. They just noticed the way she looked and how pink and white her hands were and how she laughed.

"Well, after Beulah had driven two men by dribs and two others and quarrelled almost her and several more had had fires for months, she got engaged to the cashier in a dark just because Emma liked him. Oh, no, she didn't marry him—she coolly threw him over when a rich man came along. She promptly married the rich man.

"You ought to see her house! She won't bother her head over it, because she says there are servants to do that. Her husband never get a decent meal at home and nothing to do the place is ever put away where it belongs.

"Her husband sews on his own buttons and carries up her breakfast to her before he leaves in the morning. If she cheats tears about anything he buys her diamonds and if she sulks he lets her go to Europe. He almost himself to death for her and simply adores her.

"Emma? She married the bank cashier finally and they are ordinarily happy. Yes she. He all men who marry good wives, he takes his perfectly run home as a matter of course. Sometimes when he digs Bee she she looks at him through her eyelashes in the old way and his heart thumps."

The good-looking, matronly woman stood out of the window. "I'd better send Rosamund to a beauty shop for cultivation and tell her to stop thinking about any body but herself, if she is to be happy in future—is that what you mean?" she asked with a little sigh.

"I believe you might as well," replied Aunt Amelia, "the world being so perfectly idiotic in these present times."

Good Things to Eat

Despite the fact that the prices of turkeys usually decline sharply after the Christmas holidays, the prices of turkeys are almost prohibitive to buying. There are practically no Eastern or Northern turkeys in the city market, and Western dry picked turkeys of the best quality are selling as high as 35 cents a pound.

All kinds of poultry are selling for high prices, but turkeys are at a premium.

Prices for dairy products have shown a tendency to fall off for the past three weeks, and there have been some reductions in the wholesale prices. Even at the end number has kept the retail prices quite steadily.

More good news butter is coming into the market, however, and prices are expected to fall off before another week has passed. The same is true of eggs. There is a more fresh eggs in the market at present than has been for months, and a material decline in the price of fresh Eastern eggs is expected as soon as the winter conditions become normal.

The gardener who has any amount of prime squashes in his cellar just at present can exchange them for gold nuggets and Roll Telephone stock if he so desires. There has never been a time in Boston when squashes were selling at the prices they are now prevail.

Potatoes are cheaper at wholesale than they were earlier in the season, although not enough cheaper to affect the retail prices. Prime quality Aroostook County potatoes are selling at wholesale for 75 and 80 cents a bushel.

Florida oranges are still coming into Boston and are, to a considerable extent, displacing out the California navels which were sold almost exclusively a few years ago.

Estranged

WHEN daylight dies, and night comes down apace,
And little birds awake with tender sighs,
I'll see the firelight playing on your face
When daylight dies.

My heart will watch you in my loving eyes,
Intent, imploring, just that look of grace,
For which my longing, vainly sifted, cries,
Oh! let me hold your hand a little space;
Perhaps my love will teach you in this wise
And bring your wayward heart to my embrace
When daylight dies!

JUSTICE DEMANDED

THE suffragette stood up for sentence.

"The evidence shows," said the court solemnly, "that you hit a police constable with a stone, thrashed a Cabinet minister and raided a club."

"Your Honor," interrupted the prisoner, "I demand to be treated as a first offender. Accordingly, the clerk was instructed to amend the records.—Philadelphia Ledger.

LOVE'S REIGN

THE haze hung o'er the valley
And hid the winding stream.
The round hay all faded and dry
The world was in a dream.

The sun shone in the heavens,
But he hasn't observed its smile,
But he was brave and she was glad,
For love reigned all the while.

ALFRED HENRY LEWIS Shoots Straight and Hits Hard

Before travelling with Mr. Taft through Wisconsin to Winona by way of Milwaukee, let me go back for a moment to Beverly and Augusta. The hour was evening. The reporters—that flattered yet no less hybrid tribe—had retired to their inkish lairs.

Mr. Taft, in his rocking chair of double width and strength, was seated upon his Beverly porch. His manner was one of anxious waiting, and since no sun meant no camera, the usual smile had faded from his face.

Off shore a yacht—chattel of a Trust magnate—was loading for the island. All the afternoon the afternoon over beyond the rim of the world, out of reach of casual eyes. Now, under cloak of night, it was steaming in with all the skulking secrecy of a smuggler.

The Trust yacht ran in shore as close as good seamanship would warrant, and then headed four gee hehaw by means of its small boat. The four were not without notoriety, however for they might fall short of fame. They were Speaker Cannon, Mr. McKinley of Illinois, Mr. Hemenway of Indiana and Mr. Sibley of Pennsylvania.

tion of its villainies, and forge what law tools are needed to carry on its dirty trade.

Just as there are blacksmiths who find account in making burglar tools, so too, we have Congressional blacksmiths ready to furnish what law tools are required by criminal Money in prying loose the shutters of popular wealth. Mr. McKinley and Mr. Sibley, also on the side of evil Money, act as its field marshals of legislation in its wars upon Man. Mr. Sibley, indeed, is that careless one who wrote letters to Standard Oil Archbold, comforting that little crony Rockefeller with tales of how he (Mr. Sibley) was frightening Mr. Roosevelt.

The upright, being landed, went out foot to Mr. Taft's.

Oh, it was all right! Nothing specially dangerous was planned against the house or its belongings. The furtive four were, in fact, there by invitation of Mr. Taft, sent by his letter to Mr. Cannon arranging the visit. Mr. Taft had said that, unless it could be managed "without getting into the papers," it was a pleasure he would prefer to forego.

Poet Emerson's Grandson Will Wed N. Y. Girl

Boston and New York society is interesting in the engagement just announced from New York of Miss Charlotte Irving Emerson, daughter of Alexander Forbes of this city, and son of Mrs. William Hathaway Forbes (Edith Emerson) of Milton.

Mr. Forbes is a brother of Waldo Emerson Forbes of Milton, whose engagement to his cousin, Miss Ellen Forbes, was announced a short time ago. Another brother is William Cameron Forbes, who was recently appointed governor of the Philippines. A third brother is Edward L. Forbes, who married Miss Margaret Longfellow of the Paris Embassy family a few years ago.

Alexander Forbes is a grandson of Ralph Waldo Emerson and is nephew of J. Murray Forbes. Miss Dorothy Forbes, Miss Mary Forbes and Allan Forbes are cousins.

Miss Grinnell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Grinnell of East Fiftieth street, New York. She is a niece of Mrs. Roy Morris and of Mrs. Charles Reynolds Brown. No date for the wedding has been announced, though no one would be surprised to learn that the two engagements in the Forbes family recently would result in a double wedding early in June.

DEAFNESS CURED By New Discovery

"I have demonstrated that deafness can be cured."—Dr. Guy Clifford Powell.

The secret of how to use the wonderful invention of Dr. Guy Clifford Powell and Head Noises has at last been discovered by the inventor himself, Dr. Guy Clifford Powell. Deafness and Head Noises disappear as if by magic under the use of this little device. It is entirely unlike any ear drum or trumpet ever before invented. It is so small that it cannot be seen when in use, and yet so powerful that it will enable the deaf to hear as well as any one. Dr. Powell is so sure that he can now cure every case of deafness, no matter of how long standing, whether caused by colds, fevers, or from birth, that he will send his own personal invention entirely free to all who write him. Write today to Dr. Guy Clifford Powell, 1556 Majestic Building, Detroit, Mich., for description of this new and wonderful discovery absolutely free.

MRS. BELMONT SAYS: 'LET ALL WOMEN STRIKE'

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—"I believe the women of this town could win this strike for the shirtwaist makers in no time if they would only stop work for one single day," said Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont today.

"If every telephone operator, every saleslady and every servant should suddenly leave her switchboard, her counter and her kitchen the strike would be a thing of the past.

"I wish this could be done and every woman was convinced of the power for good in feeling and her womanhood in such a way."

In these words Mrs. Belmont, in an interview with an American reporter, advocated a novel "war for women" to restore employment to the girl shirtwaist makers.

"Only women, if we want to get even decent treatment, must stand together," continued Mrs. Belmont. "Even those thousand public school teachers have learned this lesson of sisterhood-ness, while they have been trying to have their salaries raised from the present figure of $600 to one-third of what is paid to the men.

"Women Must Organize."

"The shirtwaist strikers are also learning the need of organization as unions through bitter experience. Arrested for crimes which were not committed, held in the night and morning, convicted on false testimony, sent to Blackwell's Island because they refused to pay the fine which they would not have been imposed upon a man, all these things are the price of belonging to a voteless, non-political caste.

"It is time we women organized for mutual protection, and we will do it. It is too soon.

This interview with the distinguished leader of the American suffragettes took place immediately after a meeting of school teachers in the New Amsterdam Theatre that had been called to devise ways and means to aid the strikers.

The speakers were Miss Lillian Mc Leonora O'Reilly, Miss Mary Heber, Mrs. Eva McDonald Valesh, Miss Jeannette Rodman, a school teacher, and Mrs. Belmont.

Theatre to Aid Strikers.

A letter from Klaw & Erlanger, the theatrical managers, was read, offering half the proceeds of twenty performances of Rex Beach's play, "The Barrier," which will be revived at the New Amsterdam for three weeks beginning January 10. About 20,000 tickets are to be sold for these performances. The 3000 school teachers who were present yesterday afternoon subscribed for 2,000 of them.

Mrs. Belmont said she would send a number of dresses and it was announced that Anne Morgan has promised to interest her book and a large number of society women in the task.

Miss Morgan has already collected $5,000 for the strikers. Fifteen soup-stations for the disposal of the meals have been established in Manhattan and Brooklyn, and it is hoped that $15,000 will be realized in this way.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STOCK MARKET CLOSES STRONG

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Heavy buying of Steel caused a rise of nearly a point in that issue and inspired buying of the other standard railroad and industrial shares shortly before the market closed today. As a result prices rallied and the close was strong, with prices around the best of yesterday.

Strength prevailed at the opening today, but with gains generally confined to fractions. This strong opening was due to realization that the President's special message was very conservative. Shortly after the opening selling pressure made its appearance, chiefly in South Pacific and Reading. This unsettled the entire list and all the gains were wiped out and replaced with fractional losses.

Trading became dull as prices declined. Wall street expected a favorable bank statement today, and the banks were expected to show a gain in cash of nearly $10,000,000 for the week. The actual gain in cash money distributed in shipped into the banks by corporations was already being felt by the market.

American shares were strong in London on the curb mining shares were irregular, with trading active.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

STATE STREET, Jan. 8.—Closing Copper stocks waltzed up a bit into the forenoon. The early trading was characterized by dullness, and traders were inclined to sell stocks. Finding little encouragement they turned and bid prices up.

Liquidation has ceased for the present, anyway, and North Butte sprained 2½ points from the opening at 41¾, and closed firm. Lake Copper was dull, but was quoted at 12 and nicely. Winona was strong and active, going up ¾ of a point to 1¾. Utah Consolidated rose a point to 45¾.

Amalgamated was unusually quiet but firm, closing 68. Utahs were a strong feature, advancing 1¼ points to 2¾. Quincy declined, on its Tamarack rights, and as a result the price rose sharply from 67 to 73¾, recovering finally to 70. Miami was also firm. Steel common quoted a point to 86 on short covering. Money 3@4 per cent. Call loans ranged from 12½ to 14¼, on light trading.

Curb trading was fairly active and prices generally firmer. Massachusetts Coal was the feature, selling up to 2 1-16.

BENEFIT SUNDAY TO VICTIMS OF FLOOD

To aid the unfortunate people of Cholera who were victims of the flood of December 29, the Board of Control and the special relief committee, consisting of Rev. William C. Powers, pastor of St. Rose Church; George H. Bentley, Mrs. Mitchell, Francis S. Tyrell and A. K. Munn, have arranged for a benefit concert on Sunday evening. It will be given in Gordon Bordners' theatre on Broadway.

The President's Message

I have incorporated in the large deckle-edge Public Opinion Moulder No. 11 the result to the investment world and stockdom of President Taft's vigorous message of to-day.

It is too long for a newspaper advertisement.

It is being mailed to all Senators, Representatives, Cabinet Officers and to the press. Any number of copies will be mailed free to applicants.

As the demands the President makes upon Congress, if quickly put into law, will destroy the System and make of all monopoly trusts—Steel, Beef, Oil, Sugar, Bank, etc., Frabbnabatated Znupps, and will do more to raise wages and lower the prices of the people's necessities than anything which has been done in the past hundred years, I trust all labor organizations, reform clubs and word-stringers generally will see to it that the greatest possible number of my educator, Public Opinion Moulder No. 11, are posted with the milk scores and vestry calendars.

Are YOU Going to Allow Another Term of

GRAFT

IN BOSTON?

The Candidates of the Citizen's Municipal League will act as one in Boston's interest and pledge their adherence to the following platform:

1. A constructive and progressive city government.
2. Efficiency and business-like methods in all city departments.
3. Real Economy; not the kind that protects the salaried official at the expense of the day laborer.
4. No "gift contracts" for us or our friends.
5. Not one cent of the taxpayers' money for graft or waste.
6. Strict enforcement of the laws governing the assessment of taxes.
7. Cleaner and better streets and greater attention and protection to public health and safety.
8. No loans for current expenses.
9. An honest and fair consideration of the needs of all sections of the city—favoritism to no section.

Be good to Boston and vote for the Citizen's Municipal League Candidates, as follows:

TAFT FOLLOWS W. R. HEARST FOR NEW LAW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—President Taft's message of interstate commerce law, in which he urges the establishment of a United States court of commerce, follows closely along the lines of a bill introduced in Congress in March 1904 by William R. Hearst.

This bill provided for the creation of a "court of interstate commerce" with power to review and enforce the orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission. This is exactly what President Taft is now trying to bring about.

Mr. Hearst's bill provided that the court of interstate commerce should consist of three Justices, of whom two should constitute a quorum. These justices, it was provided, were to be paid $10,000 a year, pending the action by Congress as the salaries of justices of other courts of the United States.

President Taft, in recommending a United States court of commerce, which is practically the same as the court of interstate commerce proposed by Mr. Hearst—suggests that it be composed of five judges, to be designated from among the Circuit judges of the United States court.

Other similarities between the Taft message and the Hearst bill, relating to an interstate commerce court, are:

The Hearst bill provided that the "court of interstate commerce" should have exclusive jurisdiction to review all of the decisions of the commerce commission.

President Taft's message suggests that the "United States Court of Commerce have jurisdiction over all cases for the enforcement of any order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, other than for the payment of money."

The President suggests that the members of the court be paid $10,000 a year, just as the Hearst bill provided.

President Taft recommends "that the regular session of such court be held at the capital, but it should be empowered to hold sessions in different parts of the United States if it should be found desirable."

Mr. Hearst's bill provided: "The general sessions of the court shall be held in Washington, but whenever the convenience of the public may be promoted or delay or expense prevented thereby the court may hold sessions in any part of the United States."

KEITH EMPLOYES HOLD OWN SHOW

An entertainment that lasted through the small hours of the morning was given by the employes of Keith's Theatre for the benefit of local charities last Saturday night. After the regular performance at Keith's, the stage and scenery almost filled the orchestra and for over an hour enlisted all unusual program. It was the first attempt made of the Keith Associates, and proved to be a tremendous success.

The opening number was "The Burglar," by Dunn and Mitchell, a sketch in farce, called "Minor Topics," in which a number of the stage hands appeared. Minor Topics was played by Frank Dunn, Jack Mitchell, big part were John Geddes, George Williams, Edward Mitchell and Miss Moody. After the entertainment, the members of the company danced to the band under the direction of Bart E. Grady, musical director at Keith's, and to the Hotel Province, where dinner was served.

MRS. JOSEPH MODE BURIED TO-MORROW

Funeral services will be held to-morrow afternoon for Mrs. Harriet Mode, wife of Joseph Mode, sister of A. Shuman and Samuel Shuman, who died yesterday of pneumonia, in the chapel of the Temple Ohabai Shalom Company, East Boston. Private services will be held at No. 39 Jeffries street, Roxbury, to-morrow afternoon at 1:30 p. m. for the family. The public funeral services will follow at 2 o'clock. Rabbi M. M. Ebbiner, assisted by Cantor Erwin Wolkowich of Temple Ohabai Shalom, will officiate. The Temple Quartet will assist.

TELEPHONE WAR NEAR IN THE WEST

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—A telephone war throughout the Middle West is expected to follow the decision of the reorganization committee of the Illinois Telephone Company to develop its automatic telephone system and to extend its independent line to seek long distance connection with Chicago. If the plans of the committee are successful, the Chicago will become the hub of independent telephone communication in the Middle Western States. Merging of the independent lines into a formidable rival of the American Telephon & Telegraph Company may follow.

TOOL WORKER LOSES FINGERS IN MACHINE

While at work in the machine shop of the National Tool and Machine Company at No. 253 A street, South Boston, early to-day, Fred R. Gaudette, twenty years old, No. 827 East Second street, had his left hand caught in the gearing of one of the machines. The second and third fingers were torn off, and he was taken to the City Hospital.

WALSH READY TO START FOR JAIL

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Bank Wrecker John R. Walsh will be prepared Monday to start at once for the Fort Leavenworth penitentiary to begin serving his five years' sentence, should the United States Supreme Court deny his petition for a review of the case. Walsh has wound up negotiations involving his $7,000,000 note to the clearing house banks. The final draft of the contract by which he surrenders his claim to the $1,000,000 face value of securities deposited as collateral has been completed.

WITTE, DISFAVORED, REBUKED BY CZAR

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 8.—It is officially announced that the Emperor has cancelled the name of Witte street, recently given to one of the important avenues by the city council, and has ordered it to be renamed the "Street of Peter the Great." This public mark of imperial disfavor has convinced the friends of Count Witte that there is no chance of his playing an important role in public life under present conditions.

THE TRUTH ABOUT JEFFRIES—the great fighter as he REALLY IS—will be told in the SUNDAY AMERICAN. It will make a sensation.

MISSING ROXBURY GIRL, SOUGHT BY POLICE OF CITY

MILDRED WILLIAMS

SAY WOMAN LURED GIRL FROM HOME

The police of the entire city are to-day trying to locate pretty seventeen-year-old Mildred Williams, who has mysteriously disappeared from her home at No. 3001 Dudley street, Roxbury.

A note found by her mother, Mrs. Josephine Williams, purporting to have been left by the girl, in which she explains her disappearance, is said to be a forgery.

A woman who formerly lodged at the house is suspected of having lured the girl from her home, and she is also being sought.

Mildred disappeared last Thursday afternoon. Her mother returned home that evening and found a note written in a masculine hand signed "Mildred."

Mrs. Williams searched the house and found that two suit cases and the majority of her daughter's effects were missing. Neighbors said they had seen the girl hailing the house early in the afternoon with the two suit cases.

Mildred was never allowed out at night without an escort, and so far as is known had no gentlemen friends paying her serious attention. Relatives of the girl fear she has met with foul play.

BUSINESS MEN FORM "EARLY RISING" CLUB

A dozen of the most prominent business men have just organized a club which has for its object early rising. The club has taken the motto "Early to bed and early to rise, makes one healthy, wealthy and wise." The members pledge themselves to rise every morning at 6 o'clock and to leave their clubs for home not later than 10 o'clock at night, under a severe penalties for violations of the club rules. One is that the violator must shovel the snow off the president's sidewalk.

DIVERS DISMANTLE SUNKEN SCHOONER

Capt. Alfred Sorensen says he is much pleased with the progress and success of the salvage work on the wreck of the five masted schooner Wadena, which lies on the bottom edge of Broad sound, off Lynn harbor.

Three divers are blasting away the tangled rigging so that they can take the masts out of the ship and begin the work of salvage.

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JANUARY 8, 1910.

Vote for DAVID A. ELLIS and Help Schools

David A. Ellis, candidate for School Committee and the present chairman, has given seven years of LOYAL SERVICE to the public schools of Boston.

He has done the best work of his life to help improve the condition of the schools. He is ENTITLED TO RE-ELECTION by such a large vote that it will prove to him that the people of Boston have confidence in him and believe in him and want him to continue his GOOD WORK for the schools in the future.

David A. Ellis is a very practical man. He is not a politician. He is not a seeker for personal glory. He believes in educating children in the right way. He believes in good teachers, and he believes all the other things, Mr. Voter, that YOU believe in.

And YOU need David A. Ellis to look after YOUR schools.

His record is a long one. He has studied the school problem carefully. He has helped to bring about the appointment of teachers on a system of pure merit. He has been foremost in getting efficiency out of the teachers by making their physical condition good by a year's leave of absence on half pay at every seventh year of service. He has been foremost in the creation of evening industrial schools, of establishing continuation schools, of Summer schools to assist backward high school pupils, the introduction of nurses into the public schools, of the opening of school yards as playgrounds—in fact, there is no one thing, looking to the BETTERMENT of the condition of the teachers and the BETTERMENT of the conditions under which the pupil studies, that David A. Ellis has not had a hand in and helped in a forceful way.

The larger the vote of confidence in Ellis on Tuesday next the better YOU WILL PROVE, Mr. Voter, that YOU want efficient teachers and good schools for YOUR children.

Hour of Temptation for President Taft

The President should understand that the news that he has broken with the progressive element in his own party—if it shall be confirmed—will come to the country with a shock of staggering disappointment.

Multitudes of men, not only in the West, but in the East also, who have believed in him hitherto, in spite of his too amiable understanding with Aldrich and Cannon, will quite definitely cease to believe in him if this news turns out to be true.

Mr. Taft is to-day brought face to face with his crucial temptation. The situation presented to him is one to tax the iron and energy of a great man.

There is no smooth boulevard, no loungers' promenade leading from the place where he now stands to the place where he would wish to be.

He must gird himself, must take his fortune and future in his hand and make a way where no way is.

Never before since the world began has a national government, with all its freightage of humanity at stake, confronted so formidable an organization of private interests as that which now besets the President in his dealing with the trusts and railroads.

His problem is to bring this vast corporate domain under the sovereignty of law; to subject it to the uses of justice and humanity, as well as of private profit; to make equality and right superior to private privilege and might.

The experience of universal history should teach him that no combination of privileged interests can be trusted to dictate the terms of its own submission. However wise or generous may be the temper of privileged individuals, the fact remains that Organized Privilege, in the bulk, is always and everywhere dangerous unless controlled.

Mr. Cannon and Mr. Aldrich, considered as personalities, may seem to Mr. Taft to be liberal men; but woe to him if he shall fail to understand that he is not dealing with these gentlemen as personalities, but as the plenipotentiary ministers of organized privilege!

On the other hand, it may seem to Mr. Taft, smarting under the acid criticisms of "the insurgents," that they are far from wise, and that, even if wise, they are weak—a scattering band of disaffection. But these critics of privilege and favoritism are safer guides than the servants of the money power who occupy seats of the mighty in the United States Senate and House.

What, then, is to be done?

Why, plainly, Mr. President, the thing to be done is to get out of the ruck of partisan and factional politics—and stand up for the people of the United States.

In little matters one should concede much for the sake of peace, but in great and primal issues one should throw oneself upon the facts and rest there uncompromising.

This is your deep Valley of Decision, Mr. President. You will never meet a greater issue, though you live a thousand years.

There is no party or faction made to your hand that can sustain or save you.

But you can have the upbearing allegiance of prevailing millions IF YOU WILL ONLY GO STRAIGHT AHEAD AND DO WHAT YOU KNOW YOU WERE ELECTED TO DO.

EDITORIAL POINTS

Some one has photographed the tail of Halley's comet. The comet seems shy about posing.

England is spending $100,000 for an Antarctic expedition. Better hurry or the party will find an American there.

Austria is to build sixteen dreadnoughts, which will throw a fresh scare into Britain.

We are living in the automobile age, says President Taft. And never are we more aware of the fact than when looking at the dial on a taxicab.

Half a million bottles of champagne, proudly announced a hotel man, were consumed in New York to celebrate the New Year. If so, it seems more a cause for shame than pride.

Of course you know for whom you are going to vote for Council.

Much money has changed hands in Baltimore over a terrapin race. No doubt some racegoers who have backed losing horses thought they were betting on terrapin.

The Wifehood Guild believes that the way to a happy home is through the cookbook. The old scheme of "feed the brute" is thus officially indorsed.

It is said that some one is dead as the result of a duel in Paris. However, the duel was between aliens unacquainted with duelling etiquette.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont wants all the women to strike—Help!

New England got free hides; but the price of shoes went up 50 cents a pair just the same.

Nashua, New Hampshire, appears to be the Gretna Green of New England now that Providence has quit. Love will find a way.

IT'S A SHAME TO BE COOPED UP IN AN OFFICE ON SUCH A BEAUTIFUL DAY!
YES INDEED, SIR!
HOW'D YOU LIKE TO TAKE A NICE LONG WALK THIS MORNING EH?
SUITS ME TO A T, SIR.
OUT PAST THE PARK AND ALONG THE FENWAY—THAT'S A GOOD WALK!
THE FURTHER, THE BETTER!
I WANT YOU TO TAKE A LITTLE PARCEL TO MY HOUSE — WILLIE BRING IN THAT PACKAGE!
YESSIR.
I—I'D LIKE TO GO, SIR, BUT MY FOOT HURTS!

Too Many Clothes?

By ARTHUR ROCHE

Mme. Lydia Lipkowska, Boston grand opera singer, says that women wear too many clothes, and that they should not wear stockings.

Too many clothes? Oh, I don't know:
Down where the ocean breezes blow
And bathers paddle to and fro,
They do not wear so many.
And Miss and Madame Bondsan Stocks,
When they are in their opera box—
Now, I'm not handing any knocks—
But, gosh! Do they wear any?

Too many clothes? Those girls who prance
The classical Salome dance
Don't even wear—don't take a chance
On being suffocated.

And as for stockings, just ask those
Who've been where old Boreas blows:
Why half the girls just wear half hose!
Yes, ma'am, that's what I stated.

Too many clothes? I wish I knew
Some women who would share that view.
Some husbands would be happy, too,
To hear their wives declare:
"No, dear, I do not need a hat."
Twould bring joy to each Boston flat,
But husbands hear, instead of that,
"I've not a single thing to wear!"

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WHEN Pa calm hoam last nite he saw Ma sitting in a book. What is that book, sed Pa, the diary of a fav orite wife?

No, sed Ma, that is the diary of a wife wich fites with her husband. It is the diary of a lady wich thought she married a arch-angel. Perhaps you have red in the papers, sed Ma, about Mister and Missis Brokaw. It seems, sed Ma, that Missis Brokaw kept a scrap book in wich she rote down all her scraps with she had with her husband. One day it wud be a argument about a lady, and the next day it wud be about a gentleman frend. Then there wud be a fite about a new gown or hat from Paris, & then a scrap about a party from wich everybody had calm hoam too early in the nite or too erly in the morning.

You see, sed Ma, I thought this was a fine stunt, so I got on the job & sed to myself that I wud have a little scrap book of my own. I have rote a few lines in it already, sed Ma. If you wud like to hear it. Then Ma red out of the book:

January tenth: I am very blue this morning, especially around the arms & wrists. I tried to strike dear John with a broom, & he held my arms, like the big brute of a hubby that he is. The minit that I dropped the broom he let go of my arms, but the damage had been did. I dount think my arms will be well enuff to lift another broom for several days. Mon is very cruel to thare wifes.

January 12: I feel all out of sorts to day, beskuase I got to get out of the wrong side of the bed. The wurst I cud do is get out of the wrong side of the bed, my hus band dragged me out & told me to git him his breakfast as fast as I cud stir around.

Why, sed Pa, stop rite there. I never dragged you out of bed in my life, & never laid a hand on you. I don't like to have you hanging up that kind of records against me, sed Pa. Suppose sum day you shud die & sum mother wud find them false records. She wuddent think much of me, wud she?

She doesnt think much of you anyway, sed Ma. I dount suppose Mister Brokaw was in right with his mother in law, nether.

All rite, all rite, sed Pa. I guess I will begin keeping a journal or ledger myself. I think I will call the book a Ledger of a Lost Happiness, & I think I will put down a few notes like this:

Cairn hoam very early last nite, & found my wife wearing a frown & a wrapper. I walked up to her quite genteel & tried to print a kiss on her brow, but she bent me to it by printing a punch on my beezer. Coarse work.

The next entry, Pa sed, will read like this:

Cairn hoam early to-night & tried to hug my darling wife, but she wuddent fall into a clinch and kep using a cutting leir tab. Very rud stuff.

It sounds very brutal to me, sed Ma. I dount see nether you or me ever had any regular fite.

That is just the point, sed Pa. You & me has a lot of fun making believe that we are having, but dear little queen of my hart, I worship the ground you walk on. I luv you, sweet, sed Pa. Can I go out & play billiards for a hour.

You can not, dersy, sed Ma. You can stick around the old homestead coute. Pa sed all rite. He had to say it.
